DARING FIREMAN STOPS FIVE RUNAWAYS

The chief talk around Mattapan square today was about Engineer Joseph Craddock of fire engine 16 and his feat of crawling across the suction pipe of his swaying machine after Driver Patrick Dowling had been thrown off into a snow bank on Blue Hill avenue, getting hold of the lines and bringing to a stop five galloping horses which were running away with the apparatus.

The apparatus was responding to an alarm from Box 358. On account of the blizzard two extra horses were hitched on as leaders.

Driver Dowling guided the hitch along River street in Mattapan to Blue Hill avenue. The engine slewed on the turn and Dowling was thrown clear, landing in the snow without injury.

The five horses swung around with the engine into Mattapan square and headed up Blue Hill avenue. A group of trolley cars was standing at the track terminus a few yards ahead. Engineer Craddock realized the danger of the runaway crashing into cars.

He managed to climb over the suction pipe, which was resting in its supports along one side of the machine. He clambered into the driver's seat and reached the reins. By exerting all his muscle he brought the five horses to a stop. The engineer was cheered by spectators in the square. Driver Dowling ran up and resumed his seat.

Throughout Newton sympathy is being extended to the wife and three attractive children of Irving E. Olmstead, the Newtonville wool man, who is held without bail for shooting and killing Mrs. Violet C. Mooers, a Winter street manicurist.

Although having lived in Newtonville only seven months the children, Jean McLean Olmstead, sixteen, Mary Livingston Olmstead, fourteen, and Robert T. Olmstead, twelve, had become favorites with all who knew them.

The children were pets of their father. He spent much time in their company and it was for their welfare that he was chiefly solicitous when arrested.

Almost the first words he said when seen by his wife at the Charles street jail, were, "Nellie, please tell me, what do the children think of me now? Tell them to forgive me and tell them that I love them still."

Neighbors are recalling today a snowball battle which the father and children indulged in the day before the tragedy. As Olmstead left his home to go to his office he was accompanied by his children. There was a soft snow on the ground, and when one of the girls made a snowball and threw at the father he returned it with another.

This started a lively snow battle between the children and Mr. Olmstead. The father, perhaps, enjoyed the mock battle the most and his light-heartedness at that time was characteristic

COURT ORDERS DISCHARGE OF MULLEN

The charges of disturbing the peace and of disturbing a meeting of the Everett aldermen, under which Alderman John J. Mullen of Everett was arrested February 29, were dismissed by Judge Bruce in the Malden court today.

There was a crowd in court, and friends thronged about Alderman Mullen with congratulations when he was discharged.

Judge Bruce declined to pass upon the right of the Aldermen to suspend Mullen, but he said:

"There is no doubt that Alderman Mullen had a right to go to the meeting on February 29 to protest against expulsion. It must be remembered that he was elected to represent a large number of people.

"Any disturbance there may have been in the corridors outside the Aldermanic chamber after Alderman Mullen was ejected was not sufficient to warrant this action.

"I doubt if the Everett city government consulted the city solicitor before bringing this action."

Alderman Mullen, who had been suspended for an attack upon the Mayor at a hearing on a pending measure, was carried bodily from the Aldermanic meeting on the night of Feb. 29.

After his discharge today, his attorney and City Solicitor E. Leroy Sweetzer consulted with a view to settlement of the case and to Alderman Mullen's reinstatement.

POPE REFUSES TO CENSURE MERCIER

By International News Service.

Rome, March 16.—It is reliably reported here that the Pope refused to express disapproval of Cardinal Mercier and the Belgian bishops for their denunciation of alleged German atrocities in Belgium, though the German government formally demanded he do so.

The Pope also warned the German government that threatened coercive measures against Cardinal Mercer and the bishops would constitute a flagrant violation of the independence of the Catholic Church in Belgium.

All Aboard Steamer Saved; Americans on French Liner Fired On by Submarine Off Tunis

New York, March 16.—The new Dutch steamer Tubantia, 13,911 tons, bound from Amsterdam to Buenos Ayres and other South American ports, has been sunk in the North Sea either by a mine or a submarine, according to dispatches from London today.

All on board are believed to have been saved. The passengers numbered 87, the crew more than 300. The vessel was to have touched at Falmouth, and would there have taken aboard A. V. Luck, E. F. Kenny, R. H. Graves, all Americans, and five American students, as well, some seventy other passengers and $3,750,000 in gold.

A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam via London says: Certainty exists in Amsterdam that the Tubantia was torpedoed by a German submarine and that she was attacked without warning. The dispatch adds:

"There were at least three Americans on board, Richard and Emma Carman and a Mr. Schilling. Schilling is an American consul and was en route from Stuttgart, Germany, to Rio De Janeiro."

There is no Schilling in the consular service of the United States, according to the State Department at Washington.

Shortly after news came of the destruction of the Tubantia, the French liner Patria, 11,885 tons, and with 1,900 passengers aboard, made this port and reported that a submarine fired a torpedo at her without warning off the coast of Tunis, March 1.

AMERICANS ABOARD.

The Patria came from Mediterranean ports and there were American aboard. The submarine, by firing a torpedo at her without warning and putting these Americans in jeopardy, violated the injunction of President Wilson and therefore may cause friction with the Teutonic powers.

The Patria carried no armament. The course of the torpedo was seen. It missed the Patria's stern by twenty feet. The liner put on high speed and drew safely away from the submarine.

The Patria left Oran, Algeria, on February 18, touched at Naples and Palermo, and sailed from the latter port February 29.

Mystery concerning the sinking of the Tubantia has not wholly cleared. Wireless stations along the coast

VOTE FOR OUSTING FOSTER

House Committee on Rules Reccommends Punishment for Collecting of Money by Legislator

Expulsion from the Legislature of Representative Harry C. Foster of Gloucester was recommended in a report made to the House today by the joint Committee on Rules, which has been investigating charges against Foster by Representative James M. Lyle of Gloucester of conduct unbecoming a legislator in collecting money from persons interested in measures before the Great and General Court.

The report was signed by ten of the eleven members of the Committee on Rules. The one not signing it was Representative John L. Donovan of Boston. He "reserved his rights," as the parliamentary phrase goes. This did not commit him for or against the recommendation.

Speaker Cox is chairman of the Rules Committee.

The report was read to the House at 2:25 by Clerk James W. Kimball. Except for the clerk's voice the House was painfully still while the expulsion recommendation was being read.

It was known that the committee was ready to report. So the members were nearly all present.

Representative Foster has not occupied his seat, as Representative from the Twenty-first Essex District, since the investigation began. Nor was he on the floor or in the House gallery, so far as was noticed at the time the report was being given.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

The report in full was as follows:

"The Committee on Rules, to whom was referred the order for investigation of the charges against Harry C. Foster, representative from the Twenty-first Essex Representative District, that he was guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the General Court in that he collected money from persons whom he knew to be interested in legislation pending before the General Court, which charges were made by Representative James M. Lyle of the Twenty-third Essex Representative District, reports as follows:

100 Men Offer Blood to Save Dying Woman

Providence, March 16.—A conductor, mill worker and teamster submitted to blood tests today at Rhode Island Hospital, where Mrs. Samuel Simon, wife of Samuel Simon, grocer, No. 400 North Main street, is said to be critically ill with only chance for life, the transfusion of healthy blood.

A hundred men answered an advertisement calling for subjects. The number increases with time.

"Doctors say my wife will get better if healthy blood is transfused. I was surprised to see the scores of healthy men who were willing to give up their blood. Many of them offered blood for a paltry sum," said Samuel Simon.

Mrs. Simon is 23 years old and suffered a hemorrhage recently.

VICTIM FIRST TORTURED, THEN IS PUT TO DEATH

By L. V. B. RUCKER,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—James B. Careless, an American rancher, living in Coahuila, has been murdered by Mexican soldiers wearing the uniform of Carranzistas, according to information received here today. Cowboys employed on the J. M. Dobie ranch at Musquiz, Coahuila, are said to have found the body.

Careless, who lived thirty miles from Musquiz, left here ten days ago with over $10,000 worth of supplies. His murder, however, is believed to have occurred yesterday.

The marks on the body indicated that the American had been tortured before being put to death.

Careless, who was thirty-eight years old, was a native of New York. He had been living in Mexico, however, for twenty years.

Careless regarded himself as perfectly safe in Mexico, saying just before he left San Antonio:

"I feel just as safe on Mexican soil as I do in the United States."

According to dispatches from San Benito, Texas, armed Mexican cavalry are concentrating just across the border. San Benito has suffered severely from previous marauding expeditions, and citizens are fortifying their houses and stores. The Texas Rangers have been notified and are on guard against an attack.

GUERRILLA WARFARE GREETS INVASION

the expedition sent into Mexico shortly after it crossed the border yesterday afternoon.

There were no casualties and the march of the American column was not halted by the attack.

Thomas Davis, a ranchman, living two miles from Columbus, N. M., where the forces of General John J. Pershing set out, brought in the first details of the clash between the Americans and Mexicans.

Troops Return Fire of Guerillas.

The Americans had just started across the boundary line when the Mexicans fired a fusillade at the troops of the Thirteenth Cavalry which led the expedition. Without awaiting an order the troopers in advance unslung their carbines and fired back. The Mexicans then retreated. There were no casualties among the American soldiers, the Mexican marksmanship being poor.

The skirmish was over so quickly that the column was not halted. It continued steadily along the old wagon trail that guarded the first part of the course through the Sierra Madre foothills to the desert over which the Americans must pass to accomplish their purpose of taking Villa alive or dead.

Deny Shots Fired by Carranza Troops.

Davis thought that the attacking Mexicans were Carranzista troops belonging to the command of General Pablo Bertano, but his statement to this effect was contradicted by official reports from Columbus stating that General Bertano was co-operating with the Americans. It was also flatly denied by General Gavira, Carranza commander at Juarez.

"That could not be," exclaimed Gavira when informed by the International News Service of Davis' report. "Why, I have special instructions from First Chief Carranza not to oppose the American soldiers."

"Does that mean you will co-operate with them," he was asked.

"I have been told not to oppose them."

Aeroplanes Seek Foe.

Warned by the opening clash that guerilla tactics might be expected during all the operations in Mexico, no further chances of surprise will be taken by General Pershing and his staff. Immediately after the Mexicans had been driven off two American aeroplanes took the air and flew in advance of the expedition until it halted for the night about ten miles south of the border.

Early today the advance was resumed, with the aeroplanes preceding the column and troop patrols several miles ahead of the main column to pursue any Villa scouts that might attempt to secure information as to the American movements. The first field headquarters of the Pershing expedition will be established at Guzman, a town in Chihuahua about forty miles from the border and on the railway from Juarez to Pearson. From this point the American troops will be supplied while they are waging their campaign against Villa.

BRING IN MEXICAN WOUNDED.

Army trucks connected with General Pershing's expedition, returning to Columbus today, brought with them a dozen wounded Mexicans. The wounded were abandoned by Villa after his brush with American troopers following the massacre at Columbus a week ago. American scouts found the wounded. They were attended at a field hospital.

The Mexicans were greatly surprised at the treatment. They had expected to be executed and had attempted to hide when the cavalrymen approached.

The advance guards of the column from Columbus are expected to reach Guzman this afternoon. It is expected that the column sent from Culberson's Ranch, east of Hachita, will effect a junction with the Columbus forces at Guzman, forming a force of about 5,000 men at the field headquarters.

TENSION ON BORDER.

While the American troops were well over the border into Mexico today, the tension on the United States side of the boundary was unrelaxed. Additional troops arrived in El Paso during the night, causing a lessening in the local anxiety, but the attitude of the Carranzistas caused general disquiet.

It was reported that General Luis Gutterriez, Carranza commander at Chihuahua, had broken with General Gavira in a stormy conference at Juarez, and had declared his intention of declaring himself a Villista. Gutterriez left Juarez for Chihuahua on a special train early today.

At Ojinaga the Carranza troops who mutinied and killed their commander are awaiting developments before deciding to ally themselves with the Villistas. Presidio, the Texas town across the border from Ojinaga, is an armed camp. Every precaution is being taken against an attack.

The general direction of the troops already in the field is toward Casas Grandes, in the neighborhood of which Villa is said to be on a mad rampage, bent on wreaking his passion against the Americans.

Among the troops that "went in" were the Thirteenth Cavalry, the First Aeroplane Corps, the Fourth Field Artillery and the Sixth and Sixteenth Infantry.

Those familiar with Villa's methods claim that it would be characteristic for his cavalry tactics to make a swift detour about Pershing's flank and fall on one of the border settlements. Citizens throughout the countryside have armed, and every man's home is his fortress.

BURN MORMON COTTAGES.

The general direction of the troops already in the fields toward Casas Grandes, in the neighborhood of which Villa is said to be on a mad rampage, bent on venting his passion against the Americans by the massacre of 500 Mormons last heard of in Casas Grandes district.

At Colonia Dublan, a Morman settlement in the Casas Grandes valley, 100 Mormon cottages have been burned by Villistas. The story of the latest outrage of the Villa bandits was brought to El Paso by Alexander Straut, who watched 300 Villistas approach and then fled on horseback.

"I saw them ride up to the settlement," said Straut. "They dismounted and rushed into the house. The last I saw of the colony flames and smoke were rushing from the houses. We can only imagine what became of the people in the houses."

Bishop Hurst, the Mormon prelate in El Paso, attempted to get word of the raid on Colonia Dublan. His latest report had it that the Colonists were armed and prepared to defend themselves.

ASSASSINATE COLONEL.

As the American troops advanced into the hills, there came reports of desertion from the Carranza ranks.

At Ojinaga, where the garrison mutinied, assassinated its commander, Colonel Rojas, and declared for Villa, the rebels awaited word that would take them to the aid of the fugitive who is being hunted by American troops.

It was reported that General Luids Guterriez, Carranza commandant at Chihuahua, had broken with General Gavira at Juarez in a stormy interview and had departed for Chihuahua, declaring himself a Villista and ready to aid the bandit with his troops.

The American troops were in splendid spirits when the long-awaited orders finally came and they started across to Mexico. For more than three years many of the men had been camped in the sun and eating the dust along the Rio Grande.

Just before the bugle blew advance, C. K. Warren, a wealthy Michigan man, who passes much of his time on the Alamo-Huaco ranch near Hachita, New Mexico, asked one of the officers the obvious question: "Well, are you going across the border?"

The officer grinned widely.

"Across?" he queried. "I should say not. We're going to pick up the border and take it with us."

General Pershing rode with his men. Even the cavalry horses seemed to feel the spirit of the advances. They appeared eager to take up the hard grind that is to be theirs in persuit of Villa, the master of cavalry.

The sharp word of the command passed down the line and the column swung into the rhythm of the march. The heavy supply wagons lumbered forward, the wheels of the artillery tossed back rays of the sun as they turned; swords clanked and saddles creaked—and the advance was on.

The heavy dust that is characteristic of the district rose in clouds from beneath the hoofs of the horses and the swinging feet of the infantry. It rose high over the column and hung there as the troops advanced. Long after the last of them had disappeared into the hills the thick dust marked their progress. That dust is going to be embarrassing to the secrecy of Pershing's march.

Douglas, Ariz., March 16.—Numerous reports have reached the United States military authorities here that open rebellion has broken out among the Carranza troops at Cabullona, eighteen miles south of here. Precautions have been taken to guard the town.

Dallas, Tex., March 16.—Newspaper correspondents are investigating a report that Mexican bandits held up a train near Brownsville.

Presidio, Tex., March 16.—All Americans have assembled in one place, prepared to protect themselves from Mexican raiders, following outbreaks which occurred among the Carranza troops at Ojinaga, across the border.

'STAY TILL VILLA IS TAKEN'

By the International News Service.

San Antonio, March 16.—"Now that our troops have gone into Mexico they will not come back until Francisco Villa is either dead, captured or entirely eliminated."

This was the statement of Major Frederick Funston to the AMERICAN.

According to General Funston's official statement troops under the command of Brigadier-General Pershing crossed the international boundary near Columbus and were met at the custom house on the Mexican side by Colonel Juan Alfredo Bertani, commanding 500 Mexican cavalrymen at Palomas, four miles south.

Colonel Bertani greeted General Pershing and told him he was under orders from his commanding general to accompany the American expedition with his force in the capacity of guide.

General Pershing thanked him, and the two commanders rode side by side into Palomas. Here half the Mexican troops took the lead and the other half the rear guard. No American flag was displayed by the troops on their entrance into Mexico.

General Pershing's command will go directly south to some point on the northwestern line and there cross to Galena, near which town Villa is reported to be.

Information reached Fort Sam Houston to the effect that Villa is steadily adding to his force and now has an army of about 3,000 men, poorly armed and poorly mounted.

The number of U. S. troops in Mexico now is estimated to be between six and seven thousand. There are 4,500 in General Pershing's command, it was stated.

CARRANZISTAS JOIN PERSHING AS U. S. TROOPS CROSS INTO MEXICO

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Texas, March 16.—General Pershing and his immediate command crossed the border into Mexico opposite Columbus, N. M., at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, according to an official announcement made by Major-General Funston, commanding the southern department.

About the same time Colonel George A. Dodd, temporarily in command of the Second Cavalry Brigade, crossed the border from Culberison's Ranch, twenty-five miles west of Columbus.

General Pershing's column was accompanied by Carranzista troops. The American troops were met at Palomas, Chihuahua, about four miles from the border, by General Bertaini and a detachment of 500 Carranzista cavalry. The allied column thence turned in a southerly direction.

General Funston stated that inasmuch as it was known that Villa was many miles distant to the south, it probably would be several days before any vital development would be reported.

Los Angeles Ready to Meet Outbreak

Los Angeles, March 16.—Quiet preparations to meet possible trouble by the thousands of Mexicans in and around Los Angeles are being made here.

A provision in an ordinance which limited special policemen to 300 in number was repealed without publicity by the City Council at the request of Chief of Police C. E. Snively. He said perhaps 500 would be added to the list of available emergency men.

Fifty rifles and riot guns were gathered in the office of Sheriff John Cline.

Mexicans accustomed to address crowds in the old plaza were put under more strict regulations immediately after the Columbus raid last week.

Requests for permission to swear in as special officers and employ as guards many of their employes were made to Chief Snively by public service corporations whose lines run through or near large Mexican settlements.

THIRTY MEXICAN BANDITS FIRE ON AMERICAN SOLDIERS

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—A band of about thirty bandits fired upon fifteen American soldiers guarding the Barreda bridge, near Kingsville, fourteen miles north of Brownsville, Texas, late last night according to a report received early today from Kingsville.

More than a hundred shots were exchanged and two of the bandits are said to have been wounded. No casualties among the Americans are reported.

General Funston has ordered out a strong patrol along the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad, near Brownsville.

Reports of strong bands forming on the opposite side of the Rio Grande, near Brownsville, late last night caused great uneasiness here, a repetition of the raids of last year being feared.

Texas rangers are on the move from Brownsville to the Kingsville region. A sheriff's posse has left Brownsville in pursuit of the bandits. The rangers and the civilian officers will co-operate with the military officials in rounding up the marauders.

This is the first trouble on the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico Railroad since November, when raids were frequent. Last September a passenger train on the same road was blown up by the bandits and several bandits and a number of Americans were killed.

The country, covered with thick brush, is ideal for such warfare.

FUNSTON PREPARES TO LEAVE SAN ANTONIO FOR BORDER BASE

By L. V. B. RUCKER,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

San Antonio, Tex., March 16.—With all southbound trains carrying in fresh troops for every border post, Major General Frederick Funston today turned his attention to preparations for departure. At the same time the general and his staff eagerly awaited news from the flying column of General Pershing, which crossed the border yesterday.

According to reports that reached headquarters, Francisco Villa is on his way to Boquila, Sonora, with all the forces that he can muster. If these reports are confirmed, the direction of march of the American troops may be changed.

Fort Sam Houston, the headquarters of General Funston, was alive with animation, as it was assumed that the major-general and his staff very soon would move southward and take up a position nearer the border.

MEXICANS LEAVE TOWN.

The news that American troops actually had crossed into Mexico filled San Antonio with excitement. Before sun-up people were hurrying through the streets, divided into two classes; there were Americans hurrying to the fort to learn the latest news and, running them a close race, there were many of the Mexican population hastening to get out of town.

Many Mexicans live in San Antonio, and as soon as they learned that the American invasion had become a fact they made plans to move, fearing a racial outbreak.

Texas volunteer regiments did a lively recruiting business today. Despatches from Washington that General Funston had asked for men that were available in the regular army and that State militia might be called upon to patrol the border made youths rush to the colors who before had looked only with mild curiosity at the warlike preparations being carried on at Fort Sam Houston.

Early today the only word available at headquarters was that the flying cavalry squadron under Brigadier-General John J. Pershing had taken the wagon road leading directly into Mexico from Columbus.

RIGID CENSORSHIP.

General Funston's headquarters is equipped with wireless and telegraph to receive all news from the border and official advices announcing that the Seventh and Tenth Cavalry also had proceeded across the border from Culbertson's ranch were momentarily expected.

The Tenth is a negro regiment. The two, commanded by Colonel James B. Erwin and Colonel William C. Brown, respectively, were stationed at Fort Sam Houston and at Nogales until the Columbus raid.

Rigid censorship was maintained at the fort on all movements of troops, but from the fact that the two cavalry regiments had moved southward from Culberson's ranch, it was surmised that the punitive expedition was headed for Colonia Diaz, a Mormon colony in the foothills of the Sierra Madre mountains in the Rio Chico, whence there runs a good wagon road to the south.

7000 Civilians in N.Y. Form Reserve Police

New York, March 16.—Approximately 7,000 civilians have volunteered for police duty here in case of emergency, according to announcement at headquarters. They offered to form a Home Defence League.

Acting Chief Engineer Dillon, in charge of the recruiting, said returns from four inspection districts had not been received and they probably would increase the reserve force to 8,000.

Dillon explained that in San Francisco, after the earthquake and fire, and in Baltimore, when the city was swept by fire, it was necessary to call out the militia to preserve order. With the defence league here, he added, there would be no necessity of calling upon the militia under similar circumstances.

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

Since 1909 The Automatic Plan Has Made This Store Famous the Country Over

And we believe ours to be the only store in the world of its kind. This is the way the bargain plan works:—100 suits, for example, go on sale at $10. If 50 suits are left after 12 selling days the reduction is ¼, making the price $7.50. If at the end of 18 selling days 20 suits remain, the price is cut ½ from the original, making it $5. If at the end of 24 business days 15 remain, the price is reduced ¾ to $2.50. After 30 selling days 5 suits, for instance, remain, they are given away. So you see FIRST prices must be extraordinarily low or we lose.

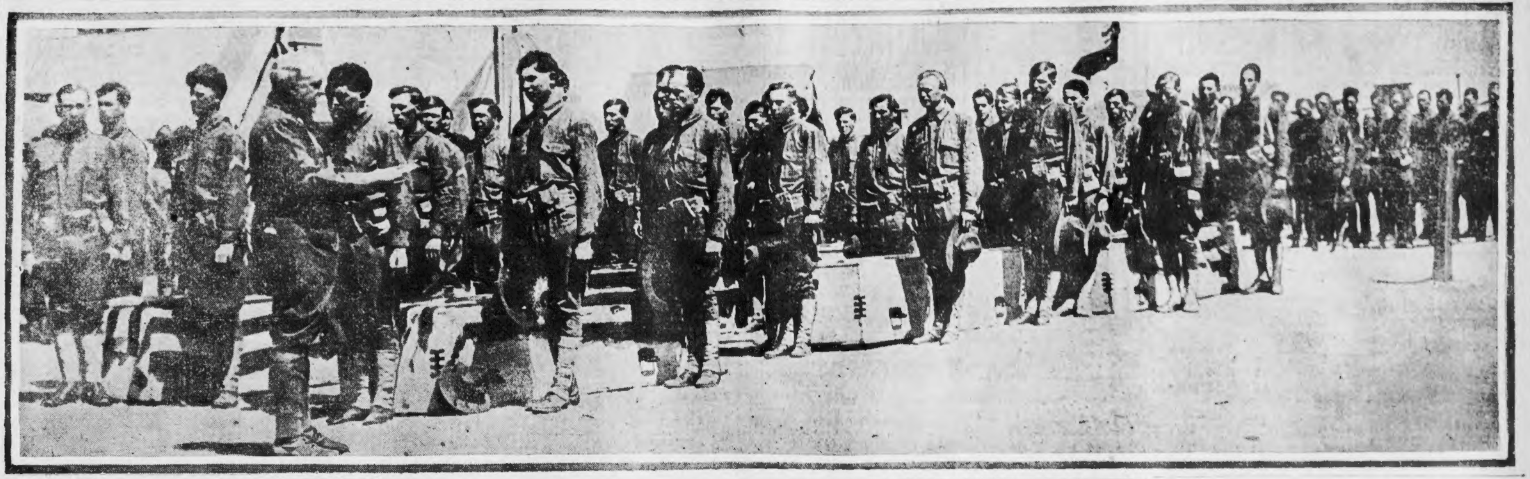
Military Funeral for Seven Soldiers Killed by the Mexican Raiders



TO CALL OUT MILITIA FOR DUTY ON BORDER

By International News Service.

Washington, March 16.—Officials of the War Department expressed the belief that portions of the National Guard would soon be called out for patrol duty on the border. The administration, it was learned, was giving serious consideration to this step, on the recommendation of the War Department. It had been urged by officials of the department that this would release all the mobile troops of the regular army to carry on the campaign in Mexico.

Important conferences have been held at the War Department in the past few days by officials of the department and of State militia organizations. The War Department has made a thorough inquiry into the condition of the cavalry troops of the militia. The cavalry of the National Guard numbers about 5,200.

It was learned that Adjutant-General Ben W. Hough of the Ohio National Guard had been asked to select a site near Columbus, N. M., of about 1400 acres, for the possible mobilization of the entire Ohio National Guard of 8,000.

TO CALL OUT MILITIA.

The department officials, it became known, advocated employing the militia in preference to calling for volunteers. The latter method, they pointed out, might create the impression in Mexico that the United States was embarking on a war of conquest, instead of an expedition solely for the capture of Villa and his bandits.

It was indicated, however, that the War Department might still find it necessary to call for a limited number of volunteers. In the event that this will be done, the volunteer forces accepted would be made up of experienced riders and marksmen, such as composed the Rough Riders, led by Theodore Roosevelt in the Spanish-American war. It was said that these would be recruited for the most part in Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California.

In the meantime, the War Department was making every effort to raise the additional troops authorized by Congress. Instructions went to all recruiting officers to do their utmost to get men. Secretary Baker and General Scott, chief of staff, said they could not possibly predict how long it would take to recruit the required number.

NOW SHY 13,000 MEN.

Brigadier-General Henry P. McCain, Adjutant-General of the War Department, has provided for 210 auxiliary recruiting stations. There are fifty-four main stations.

The passage by the Senate of the resolution authorizing an increase in the army actually permits the War Department to raise about 33,000 men. The present authorized strength of the army is 100,000 while the enlisted strength is about 87,000.

The army at present, therefore, is 13,000 men short of its authorized strength. The resolution passed by Congress increased the authorized strength from 100,000 to 119,947, and, therefore provides for a total increase over the present authorized strength of about 33,000 men.

The present plan is to send the recruits to the border as fast as possible to fill out the regiments which remain on patrol duty. This method, it is believed by officials, will expedite the training of the men.

CONGRESS RUSHES PLAN TO INCREASE U. S. ARMY TO 200,000

Washington, March 16.—Quick response to the President's demand for immediate action on preparedness legislation was decided upon today by congressional leaders. Within a few days both Senate and House will be hard at work on the land defense measures, increasing the regular army and supplying an adequate reserve.

House leaders decided to take up in the House tomorrow the Hay bill, increasing the army to 140,000 men, and federalizing the militia. Despite the opposition of supporters of the Burnett immigration bill, which was scheduled to be taken up tomorrow, the leaders determined to sidetrack that measure, if necessary, in order to get at the Hay bill.

On the Senate side, the Military Affairs Committee held a strenuous session to conclude its work on the Chamberlain bill endorsed by the army general staff.

The committee planned to recommend the bill to the Senate for passage either today or tomorrow and to make an effort to sidetrack all other legislation in order to get the Senate down to work on it.

The Chamberlain bill provides for a standing army of 250,000 war strength.

Both these bills will be rushed through the respective houses as rapidly as possible and they will then be sent to a conference committee, which will frame the land defence measure finally agreed upon.

It is probable that the conference will compromise on the size of the regular army, making it 175,000 or 200,000.

COSMETICS AND SKIN PROTECTION

If You Use Cosmetics, Apply Poslam As a Safeguard.

Every woman who uses cosmetics will wisely apply a little Poslam, frequently, to counteract the danger of ill effects and to perfectly safeguard her skin. Cold creams alone will not fully suffice; the healing, antiseptic influence of Poslam is needed and will amply repay in effect for the time and trouble of applying. Use Poslam for all diseased conditions of the skin, as well; eczema, pimples, rashes, redness.

Recruiting Waits for Border Clashes

Boston recruiting has been little affected by the Mexican situation. Only three enlistments were reported here since Saturday. Several sub-stations are to be reopened.

Recruiting in New York city shows a remarkable decrease compared with the corresponding months of previous years. As yet the Mexican crisis has not reflected itself in any spirited boom in enlistments.

There has been a slight increase in recruiting in New York this week as compared with last week.

The recent drop in recruiting there is attributed to the remarkable wave of prosperity which has overtaken industry.

According to recruiting officers, it is not expected there will be any marked increase in the number of recruits until some serious clash has occurred along the Mexican border.

Reports from other sections of the country show a brisker movement to join the colors, due solely to the Mexican crisis.

In Chicago banners inscribed "Help Catch Villa" preceded by a brass band will be used by Lieutenant F. R. Keney to aid the recruiting. Without this spectacular aid 500 men already have applied for enlistment.

Philadelphia reports that since the situation along the Mexican border became acute applications for enlistment have doubled.

FEDERAL RULE OF MILITIA URGED

Robert L. Raymond of Milton, chairman of the special Commission on Military Education appointed by Former Governor Walsh, today urged the Military Affairs Committee at the State House to let Massachusetts take the lead for national defence by allowing its militia to go under federal control.

Mr. Raymond advocated the bill unanimously reported by the Commission, which would permit the members of any unit of the State militia to vote to join the proposed Federal militia and would allow the State armories, campgrounds and other military property to be leased to the government. In all cases the federalization idea would have to be approved by the Governor.

This is the "Massachusetts idea," Mr. Raymond described it. He said it has stirred a national approval. He attacked the Hay bill in Congress as unconstitutional and ill-digested and said that when Congress finally realizes that the people of this country want no half-way preparedness a proper nationalization plan will be evolved.

Adjutant General Charles H. Cole of the State militia, and Major Guy Murchie were among the first to approve the plan. The Rev. Charles W. Lyons, S. J., president of Boston College, who was a member of the special commission, was among the prominent citizens present. Walton A. Greene of the Boston Journal, who was also a member of the commission, was there to offer his approval.

"It is generally agreed," said Mr. Raymond, "that there should be 1,000,000 partially trained fighting men. There are now 130,000 officers and men in the militia units of the country. The question is how to obtain, control and train the 870,000 that are needed."

Mr. Raymond said he thought the opposition would come on the ground that no State right should be relinquished. "The real, underlying need for this plan," Mr. Raymond said, "is to stimulate a national feeling of patriotism. The men of the militia want to feel that they owe their allegiance, their devotion and their service to the United States rather than to any single State."

"This statement was received with long applause.

General Cole said the act was permissive. "It doesn't force anybody to do anything unless he wants to and is not objectionable," he said.

MAINE HERMIT MURDERED FOR MONEY

Schoodic, Me., March 16.—The body of George Herbert, a seventy-year-old hermit, who had lived alone in a camp on Five Islands, Schoodic Lake, for eight years, was found today by Wallace London, a lumberman. He had been beaten to death and his hut ransacked.

Herbert had lived the life of a recluse, far away from any other habitation. Little was known of the man. He came here eight years ago and was supposed to have had considerable money.

Robbery was evidently the motive of the murder. The body lay in a pool of blood, death having been caused by blows upon the head by a heavy instrument. According to Medical Examiner Snow the crime was committed on Tuesday.

A posse was organized by Sheriff Charles H. Norton of Dover and search is being made in the woods hereabouts for a view to the murderers.

ALLSTON GIRL IN SCHOOL ROMANCE

The marriage of Miss Frances Eyre Hartwell, eighteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton Hartwell, No. 29 Park Vale avenue, Allston, to Perry Alvan Marston, twenty, No. 359 Wolcott street, Auburndale, was announced today. The marriage, which was the culmination of a school day romance, took place on March 6, but was kept secret by the young couple. Mrs. Marston is a dancer and athlete and a student of art and music. Her husband is engaged in the insurance business in Boston.

CROWLEY HEARS PICKET CHARGES

Charges by a committee of the Boston Central Labor Union of assaults and threats made by a sergeant and patrolmen of the East Dedham street station were taken under advisement by Superintendent of Police Crowley today. The assaults are alleged to have been made on pickets doing duty in connection with the strike at the Belle Waist Company, No. 1000 Washington street.

Urge Bill for Teacher Agency Backed by State

Senator George H. Jackson of Essex was before the legislative Committee on Education today in support of his bill to eliminate abuses connected with teachers' agencies conducted for private profit. Part of the bill provides for action by the State Board of Education in the capacity of teachers' agency upon payment of a fee of $2 per case, and cuts off half the five per cent. of salary commission for the first year which private agencies now charge.

He said the bill was introduced at the request of Lynn educational authorities. Senator Jackson believed school superintendents are in collusion with agencies, in certain cases, whereby frequent changes are made in teachers for the sake of putting more fees into the pockets of the agencies.

Opposition to the bill was led by Alvin F. Pease, representing the Winship Teachers' Agency, who told of the greater care necessary in a teachers' agency than in an ordinary employment agency, of the necessary cost, of the general satisfaction of the teachers with the system and their willingness to pay the fee.

CITY BEGINS ITS ANNUAL POLL TAX HUNT

City Collector John J. Curley announced today that he would start Monday on the annual attempt to collect the poll taxes now due the city. His first move will be to establish branch offices throughout the city, in charge of a deputy tax collector, where taxes may be paid.

An experimental station was opened last Monday and 470 delinquents paid. Summonses were given to constables today for every delinquent.

There are 212,000 assessed polls. To date 76,000 polls have been collected, 2 per cent. more than at this time last year.

Following are the branch stations where poll taxes may be paid every Monday night: Municipal building, Charlestown; Court House, East Boston; Ward 8 Gymnasium, Blossom street; Franklin Institute, Berkeley street; Municipal building, Broadway, South Boston; Municipal building, Upham's Corner; Municipal building, Vine street, Roxbury; Court House, Roxbury street, Roxbury; Town Hall, Brighton; Court House, Dorchester; Library, Codman square.

RAIDERS KILLED FIVE MEMBERS OF FAMILY

By International News Service.

El Paso, March 16.—Colona Dublan, the Mormon settlement in the Casas Grandes valley, is in ruins as a result of an invasion of Villa bandits, according to a report which reached El Paso from Columbus, N. M. The news of the burning of the Mormon village of more than 100 homes was brought to Columbus by Alexander Straut, who barely escaped with his life.

Whether the Mormons were murdered, or whether they escaped to the Carranza garrison at Casas Grandes was not known. Mr. Straut, who was on top of one of the one-story houses when he saw the Villa band of 100 soldiers approaching, leaped to the ground, mounted a horse and rode away as the bandits entered the town on their mission of destruction. As Mr. Straut rode away, the flames from the burning buildings could be seen for miles.

With Mr. Straut was a man named Tracy, who was also a member of the Mormon colony. Tracy also barely escaped with his life. He remained at Columbus to act as scout for the United States army.

According to Straut's story, the five male members of the Polanco family were murdered by Villa bandits while at the Corralitos ranch on Monday, but the three Polanco girls were taken prisoners. The men who were shot to death were Gregory, Mario, Geronimo, Davis and Valentine Polanco.

The bandits approached the ranch house and represented themselves to be Carranza soldiers. After requesting food, the bandits opened fire on the Polanco men, killing some of them in the house and others in the corral as they ran to their horses. After looting the ranch house and seizing the horses, the bandits moved on toward the Colona Dublan settlement.

Whether the bandits would attempt to attack the Carranza soldiers and Mormon settlers at Casas Grandes was not known. The direction said to have been taken by the bandits was to the south and east of Casas Grandes, in the Galena district.

100 Refugees Reach Laredo by Train

Laredo, Tex., March 16.—A train has brought about 100 Americans here from Monterey, Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and as far south as Aguas Calientes. Many were mine and smelter workers. More Americans are following them to the border, they reported.

There was [illegible] of the cities [illegible] United [illegible] Dame, who [illegible] consulate to the [illegible] consul, was reported on his way to the border with fifty Americans. The party was expected to reach Monterey today and come to the border via Eagle Pass or Laredo.

POLICEMEN HONOR CAPTAIN REARDON

After trudging through deep snow from his residence on Trull street, Dorchester, Captain Charles T. It was the first anniversary of his charge of the station as captain.

What the World Thinks
Waltham Watches

It is well worth your while to pause in front of our window at 24 Winter Street and see there a really fascinating exhibit of awards which have been won by the Waltham Watch in competition with the world.

In every great world exposition since 1857, whenever the Waltham Watch was exhibited, it surpassed all others in instrumental excellence.

In our windows you may see not only the Seven Decorations of Honor won by Waltham at the Panama-San Francisco-Pacific Exposition, but also the original gold, silver and bronze medals awarded to Waltham in a score or more of the great international expositions.

Of unusual interest in itself, this unique exhibit should likewise appeal to the pride of every staunch New Englander.

MORRISON ON THE STAND IN B. A. A. SUIT

Plymouth, March 16.—George W. Morrison, co-defendant with nineteen other members of the governing board of the Boston Athletic Association in the $20,000 defamation suit of Dr. Russell A. Richards, a Boston dentist, testified today that the plan of action resulting in the expulsion of Dr. Richards from the club had been outlined by an attorney prior to the meeting, May 19, 1914.

Mr. Morrison also said he did not know that any member of the governing board had investigated the Greenfield rumors about Dr. Richards. He was under direct examination by J. J. Feeley, counsel for Dr. Richards, and his testimony was marked by frequent clashes between counsel.

Q.—Did you bring to the meeting, May 19, 1914, a plan of what you intended to do? A.—Yes.

Q.—It was planned by Attorney Goodwin in his office previous to that, was it not? A.—Yes.

DOESN'T RECALL.

Attorney Feeley, reading from the record of the previous trial, asked Morrison if he had not testified: "We felt sure that the doctor was guilty." Morrison replied: "I must have, although I don't recall."

Q.—What did you mean by this statement: "We are not here to make charges against you, but to hear you in the matter ——" did you mean that you had the charges already fixed up? A.—No.

Attorney Feeley showed Morrison a circular, dated May 19, 1914, addressed to the members of the Boston Athletic Association and signed by Secretary George W. Beals.

Q.—I ask you if you did not say at the last trial that this circular was not in print on the day of the meeting, May 19? A.—I think I said it must have been.

Q.—When you prepared the circular you had in mind that the doctor was to be expelled. Is this a fact? A.—I don't think so.

Morrison testified that he "probably talked with ten or fifteen members" about the Greenfield rumor, but failed to recall any particular instance.

Q.—You know that the woman referred to is one of the most respected in Greenfield? A.—I know very little about her.

Q.—Frederick Smith, one of your club members, was once a resident of Greenfield, was he not? A.—Yes.

REFUSES TO SWEAR TO IT.

Q.—Didn't you ask Smith about this Greenfield affair? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Didn't he come to you and tell you about it? A.—I don't think so.

Q.—Will you swear to that? A.—No, I will not.

Q.—Don't you think these rumors would have a tendency to prejudice your mind against the doctor? A.—Yes, so far as his general character was concerned, I think they would.

Q.—Weren't you prejudiced when you went into the meeting, May 19? A.—Yes, I suppose it was still there.

Q.—Up to that time had you taken pains to ascertain the truth of the report? A.—I inquired about it in the club.

Q.—Can you name any particular man of whom you inquired? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Not allowing yourself to be sure of these rumors being true, you allowed yourself to be prejudiced, is that a fact? A.—I thought they might be true.

Q.—Was there any man on that governing board who attempted to question the truth of this Greenfield report? A.—I don't know of anybody.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Thomas Hunt, Morrison testified there was no unfriendly feeling between himself and Dr. Richards and that he hired Attorney Goodwin to protect the interests of the club.

SUFFOLK SCHOOL RESOLVE URGED

James H. HOUSE TO REPEAL FREE SUGAR CLAUSE

Washington, March 16.—The administration bill to repeal the free sugar clause of the Underwood-Simmons tariff law, which would take effect May 1, came up for general debate in the House and its passage was expected today. Representative Keating of Colorado insisted that the measure would mean the adding of one cent a pound to sugar.

JOHN J. MURPHY, toastmaster at tonight's banquet in South Boston, the opening of the Evacuation Day exercises.

Final preparations have been made for the Evacuation Day parade in South Boston tomorrow and the big event will positively be run off according to schedule, no matter what the weather, according to Chief Marshal Paul J. Jakmauh.

The city and Elevated again began the work of clearing the parade route streets today, but if the snow continues to fall they will be covered with ashes.

A banquet will be held tonight in the Municipal Building, East Broadway, at which John J. Murphy will act as toastmaster. The guests will include Governor McCall, Congressman and Mrs. Keating of Colorado, Mayor Curley, Postmaster Murray, Speaker Cox of the House of Representatives, Congressman James A. Gallivan, Professor Edmund von Mach of Harvard, District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, Michael H. Corcoran, former chairman of the School Committee, and Dr. David B. Scannell.

OLMSTEAD WAS HYPNOTIZED,' SAYS WIFE of the home life of the man now being held for murder.

WIFE IS DEVOTED.

Mrs. Olmstead reaffirmed today her unwavering faith in her husband's love and her determination to stick by him to the end.

Mrs. Olmstead has visited her accused husband in the Charles Street jail and has talked over with him the tragedy and the events which led up to it. From these conferences with him, she has become convinced, she declared, that he was attracted to the manicure in an infatuation that seemed to him afterward almost hypnosis.

"I am a Christian woman," Mrs. Olmstead said. "It is my duty to help my husband all I can. I talked with him in the Charles Street Jail and he told me he did not love Mrs. Mooers. He was attracted to her by a peculiar influence which she exerted over him, and which amounted almost to hypnotism.

"It was this strange attraction which turned his brain. I remember now that he had been acting strangely lately. I did not realize it at the time and I never suspected the cause. I can understand it now.

DARED HIM TO SHOOT.

"Mrs. Mooers lied if she said that she had tried to deter Mr. Olmstead from seeing her when she found out he was married. They say she found out over a year ago, but accepted his attentions right along after she found out.

"She encouraged him all she could. She taunted him with the boast that he was not the only married man she had fleeced. It is preposterous even to think that he loved another woman. Irving was the best husband to me and the best father to our children that could be desired. He loved us with all his heart and soul. This other thing was an obsession.

"He was insane when he shot Mrs. Mooers. He did not go to her manicure shop with any intention of killing her. If he had even contemplated such a possibility he would have had his pistol already loaded. She crazed him with her taunts, by daring him to shoot her. No jury ever can say that Irving was in his right mind when he fired the bullets that killed her.

"SHE DROVE HIM INSANE."

"He did not buy that revolver with any such intention. He bought it because I wanted him to buy it. I had often urged him that it was not safe for him to be stopping in strange hotels entirely defenseless. He promised me to buy an automatic gun, and the one he bought in Dock Square was bought to protect himself.

"That woman had been driving him insane for three years. Whatever it was she said to him merely completed the work. Then she dared him to shoot her, and the revolver was not loaded even then. If he had intended to go there and shoot her, it stands to reason that he would have gone all ready, especially with his revolver loaded."

URGE MEN TO JOIN BAND AT HARVARD

Harvard is holding out strong inducements to men to become members of the regimental band. In addition to its drills, it is planned to have the musicians do duty at the football and baseball games, mass meetings and similar occasions, thus disposing of the high-priced bands that have been acting in this capacity for years. Members of the band will be taken away with the sporting teams and treated royally.

PLOW OUT PATH FOR PARADE IN SOUTH BOSTON

A force of men, horses and ploughs was put to work today, ploughing snow from the middle of the streets along the route of the Evacuation Day parade in South Boston tomorrow and throwing the snow to one side, but the parade streets will not be cleared of snow in the way that had been planned before last night's blizzard struck in.

Edward Murphy, Public Works Commissioner, said today:

"Last night's storm caps the climax. The men and horses of this department are simply tired out. They have been going day and night on snow removal since February 1 and they can do no more than they are doing now. They are just worn out.

"The route of the parade will not be cleared of snow. It would be a physical impossibility to do it in one day, if I had twice as many men. As soon as the snow stopped I put big ploughs to work along the South Boston parade route and before dark they will have ploughed out the middle of the street and thrown the snow to one side.

NO CARTING.

"I hope to get a sufficiently wide space cleared in the middle of the streets so that the parade can take place, but there will be no attempt to cart away the snow. Just before the parade, where necessary, cinders will be scattered so that there will be no danger from slipping."

Chief Marshal Paul J. Jakmauh said today that the parade would be held tomorrow, no matter what the weather.

During the parade Dover street and Dorchester avenue will be blocked and cannot be used by outward bound street cars. While these streets are blocked, outward bound passengers using Dover street lines should transfer to and from the Elevated at Northampton street to and from which all lines regularly operated on Dover street will run.

Dorchester avenue-Broadway Extension cars will be run outward bound via Summer street extension and L street. Extra service will be provided as needed on all South Boston lines both before and after the parade.

TO DISCUSS HOPES OF PREVENTING WAR

Four meetings to discuss the possibility of abolishing war are planned for Ford Hall for forthcoming Sundays by the Massachusetts Peace Society. The dates, topics and speakers follow:

March 26, World Commerce—A Force for World Peace. Speaker, Herbert S. Houston, chairman, Committee on Information, League to Enforce Peace.

April 9—Why I Favor a League to Enforce Peace. Speaker, George W. Nasmyth, secretary Massachusetts Branch, League to Enforce Peace.

April 16—America's Asiatic Problem. Speaker, Sidney L. Gulick, lecturer, Imperial University, Kyoto, Japan.

April 23—Possibilities of Pan-American Co-operation. Speaker, George H. Blakeslee, Professor of History and International Relations, Clark College.

WAITER LOSES TWIN SONS AT VERDUN

New York, March 16.—What the attack on Verdun means came home to some of the regular diners at Mouquin's Fulton street restaurant. Francois Bach, one of the old guard waiters, was serving during the luncheon hour when a cablegram was handed to him. A moment later he said that he could not work any more that day. The cablegram told him that his twin sons had been killed together in fighting off a German charge and that the tragedy had caused the death of his father, who was ninety-nine years old.

DOCTOR DIES ON EMERGENCY CALL

As a result of the sudden illness of Mrs. Marion Lewis of No. 55 Grant street, Waltham, Dr. Edward R. P. Fourtin, who lives just across the street, was called to attend her. Dr. Fourtin had been gravely ill for three weeks, but he responded to the call. The strain was too much for him. He collapsed, was taken to his home, and died. Mrs. Lewis was today recovering. Her husband, Dr. James P. Lewis, said today that she suffered a fainting spell.

FAIR EXHIBITS FOR HEARST MEMORIAL

San Francisco, March 16.—A large part of the mineral exhibits shown at the Exposition have been presented to the University of California. They will be placed in the Hearst Memorial Mining Building, erected by Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst as a memorial to Senator Hearst. Mrs. Hearst added to her list of donations thirty samples of ore from Peru. She also presented to the Museum of Anthropology twenty pieces of pottery and beadwork made by Pueblo and Plains Indians.

WALTHAM BOY, SHOT IN ACCIDENT, BETTER

Fifteen-year-old Ralph Walker, first year pupil at Waltham High School, who accidentally shot himself in the chin while cleaning an old revolver, was reported as "comfortable" today at Waltham Hospital. The lad was working on the revolver in the cellar of his home at No. 19 Farwell street. He hammered the trigger and the weapon was discharged. Ralph ran upstairs to his mother, who called the police.

RICH WIDOW MAKES PRIEST HEIR AND SON

New Orleans, March 16.—It has become known here that Mrs. Louise C. Thomas, seventy-three, and reputed to be one of the South's wealthiest women, has adopted as her son and heir the Rev. Peter Scotti, formerly chancellor of the Catholic diocese of New Orleans. Mrs. Thomas is the widow of Stanley O. Thomas, a cotton factor, who left an estate of several million dollars.

HARVARD FRESHMAN SMOKER TONIGHT

The second smoker of the Harvard freshman class will be held tonight, with President Henry C. Flower as the chief speaker. Moving pictures, comedians, the freshman band, cigarettes and beer are the attractions offered.

Archie Roosevelt Urges Harvard Mates to Sign Up for Military Duty

Archie B. Roosevelt, third son of the Colonel, is doing missionary work at Harvard in obtaining enrollments for Plattsburg, N. Y. Archie chides his Harvard mates for not being more ready to sign up for the government Summer military camps. Roosevelt, representing the Plattsburg committee, writes as follows to the Crimson:

"At the present writing we have enrolled and sent to New York from the Regimental Headquarters only 220 men for the Summer camps. This is really a most unsatisfactory showing.

"If Harvard men would only stop to consider the inconvenience they cause the army officers organizing the camps, by enrolling at the last moment, they would probably enroll at Weld 3 immediately, even if this action might cause them the slight extra trouble of withdrawing their enrolment at a later date, should unforeseen events prohibit them from entering the camps this Summer.

"The next batch of enrolment blanks is going to New York on Friday, March 24. We wish to send down on that date the names of at least two hundred recruits, to show that Harvard, and the Harvard Regiment are backing General Wood's scheme of the Plattsburg Camps.

"There will be someone in the regimental office from nine o'clock every morning until five in the afternoon to receive blanks and answer questions."

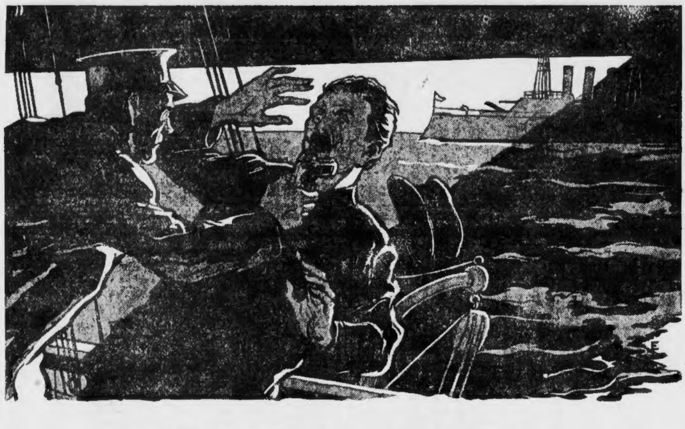
TO REOPEN PANAMA CANAL ON APRIL 15

By International News Service.

Washington, March 16.—The Panama Canal will be reopened to traffic April 15. Colonel Harding, acting Governor of the Canal Zone, has cabled the War Department that conditions at present justified the prediction that vessels of thirty-foot draft could pass through the canal as early as April 15. He said there might be temporary delays after that.

MAY APPOINT TYSON BAKER'S ASSISTANT

Washington, March 16.—President Wilson is considering the appointment of Colonel L. D. Tyson of Knoxville, Tenn., Assistant Secretary of War to succeed Henry Breckinridge. Colonel Tyson has the support of the Congressional delegation from Tennessee.



IRELAND UBER ALLES
by PETER B. KYNE

Capturing the Appam, running the gauntlet of the British Navy and bringing the ship into a neutral port under a prize crew was an exploit no more thrilling than the feat performed by Capt. Murphy and Chief Reardon of Cappy Ricks' ship Narcissus.

In this four-part story in the famous Cappy Ricks Series, foreign secret service agents capture an American ship and all but accomplish their plan to turn her cargo of steam coal over to the German fleet.

A rattling deep-water sea story of timely war-time interest.

COLONEL GLENN TAKEN TO TASK FOR SPEECH

Washington, March 16.—Secretary of War Baker has requested Colonel Edwin F. Glenn, chief of staff of the Department of the East, to give his version of his speech at the Sphinx Club in New York. According to reports, Colonel Glenn is reported to have described the condition of the United States army as "pathetic," and to have discussed the Mexican situation. Pending the explanation, the secretary declined to make any comment.

The speech of Colonel Glenn, as published, caused a sensation in official circles, particularly among army officers. State Department officials expressed themselves as surprised that an army officer should discuss Mexican affairs at the present time, and it is understood that the department probaly will take formal cognizance of the incident.

"Colonel Glenn merely expressed in his own way what a great many other people have said in other ways, and what a great many public men and army officers realize to be actual military conditions in this country," said Senator Chamberlain.

"I do not care to pose as an alarmist, nor would I use the word 'pathetic' in speaking of the present United States army and the military conditions in this country. But I will say and have always said, with great emphasis, that the army of the United States is totally inadequate to afford the protection needed and would be unable to cope with any serious situation that might arise.

"When the great extent of the border line of the United States along the south and along the Canadian line, for that matter, is considered, it must be apparent to anybody that the army doesn't make even an effective border patrol."

ROBERTS HEAD OF THE HARVARD CLUB

Odin Roberts, '86, was elected president of the Harvard Club at the annual meeting held in the clubhouse. The payment to the club of a legacy of $150,000 under the will of Arthur J. Beebe was also announced. Other officers chosen were: Vice-President, Robert F. Herrick '90; treasurer, F. S. Mead '87, and secretary, F. W. Thompson '02. The following were elected to the board of directors to serve until 1919: William S. Hall '69; John Lowell '77; Thomas K. Cummins '84, and James Lawrence '01. Henry L. Higginson '55, was elected president emeritus.

LODGE URGES FIRM STAND BY THE U. S.

Pleading for "a force which will make the world beware of us," Senator Lodge assured the members of the Massachusetts Trust Company Association at the Copley-Plaza that "a government which does not protect its citizens will not be able to protect itself," that a democracy which fails to safeguard its every member wherever he may be, is doomed to failure.

President Richard C. Maclaurin of Technology concentrated the lessons of the hour into an address on the value of applied science. Professor O. M. W. Sprague of the department of banking and finance in Harvard University forecast the business and industrial situation at the close of the war.

Senator Lodge said:

Yield on the little right and allow it to go by default, and we see men slaughtered and women outraged with indifference. Surrender one right, and by-and-by you have an invasion by the bandits of Mexico, because we have not insisted on every American right.

I am the last to desire war, but my own firm belief is that war is more remote from a nation which stands firmly, without bluster, without arrogance, with a determination to be just, than from a nation which begins by surrendering a right, here and there, and does not support her rights anywhere.

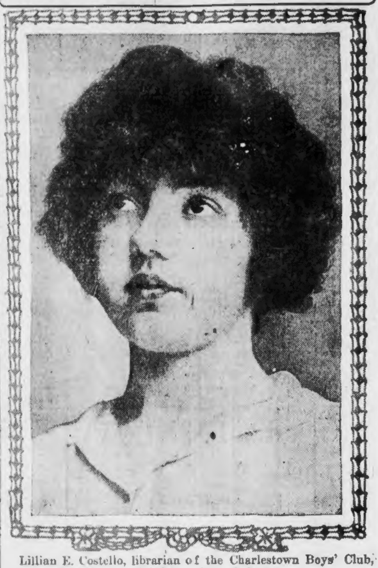
A government which does not protect its citizens will not be able to protect itself. A democracy which, in the presence of the world as it is today, fails to protect every member of that democracy—I care not however humble—in his rights, is a democracy that is doomed to failure.

A people will not stand for and will not sacrifice themselves long for a government which does not give them the protection which it is its duty to give them. That is the duty of the government, and in order for the government to do it, the people should have that national defence which lifts us above the danger of invasion and the humiliation of insult.

HELEN W. BISHOP RICH DIVORCEE, DIES

Chicago, March 16.—Mrs. Helen Walton Bishop, woman of romance, is dead in Danville, Ill. She was divorced last January from Dickenson B. Bishop of Dowagiac, Mich., and was reported to have been awarded $200,000 annual alimony.

Girl Librarian Helps Charlestown Boys' Club to Get Building Fund



Lillian E. Costello, librarian of the Charlestown Boys' Club, who tells why new club house is needed.

GOV. CURTIS FAVORS DEFENCE CLUBS

Augusta, Me., March 16.—Governor Oakley C. Curtis today came out strongly in favor of woman's defence clubs in a letter to Mrs. Lurana Sheldon Ferris of Old Orchard, one of the organizers of the Woman's Defence Club. Governor Curtis said in part: "In all wars women have had to bear a large part of the burden, and consequently their influence is of deeper significance in the promotion of adequate means to avoid such hardships."

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

Lillian E. Costello is one girl among 1,000 boys at the Bunker Hill Boys Club, Charlestown. She is librarian, stenographer and sister pro tem to every youngster who wants help in home lessons, or assistance with long words or involved sentences.

From her appearance one is led to believe that Miss Costello has not long been graduated from high school herself, and perhaps that is why she understands so well the school difficulties of her young charges.

For six years she has worked and played with the boys of Bunker Hill, and each year she has become more and more sure that the old buildings in which the club is housed are not fit places in which to bring up and educate American citizens. When she talks about the ramshackle walls, floors and stairways, she is most practical and matter of fact.

She stopped a few moments from her typewriting and explained the situation of the club, saying:

"This house was 125 years old last Saturday, and you don't have to look very far to believe it. We have managed to get along somehow, but the limit has been reached and we must have some place to move into soon, if we are not to have the building tumbling about our ears.

APPRECIATE CLUB.

"Should you come here on a cold night, you might wonder why the boys are content to sit and read in a library where the atmosphere is almost freezing, as is the case with us, but the answer is that the library is pleasanter and warmer than the street corner, or even than many a kitchen I might tell you about.

"Our windows are loose, the floors and walls let in cold air, and the furnace is unable to supply heat enough.

"Those who are members appreciate the club even as it is. They will tell you that wireless telegraphy, basket making, basket ball, bowling, paper-flower making, cabinet making, reading and studying are worth something to them and are much more fun than doing nothing.

"I have been in some of the places the boys call home, and it is no wonder they prefer coming here. Many of the parents are poor, and even though they try their best they cannot supply what a boy wants in the way of games and books.

"Then, too, here in this part of the city we have to fight the saloons; it is terrible. There must be as many as seventy-five places where liquor is sold. I cannot understand why such a number of licenses are granted. Homes are broken up by drink, and that is no secret.

WILL RAISE FUNDS.

"Our boys are as good as any in the city, and they learn very soon after joining the club that it pays to belong. Could we have a larger club building with a swimming tank, bright warm class rooms, a cheerful library and a big gymnasium, all the boys would belong. There must be a new club, and there is going to be one."

A Boston campaign to raise funds for this project begins tomorrow. One hundred or more leading citizens, including members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boston City Club, are laying the plans for a ten-day whirlwind campaign with $125,000 as the goal.

PRINCETON DROPS 59 OF ITS STUDENTS

Princeton, N. J., March 16.—A new record was set by the Princeton faculty this year when fifty-nine undergraduates were dropped from their classes as a result of their showings in the midyear examinations. These, together with eleven who undoubtedly would have been dropped, but who "resigned" before the examinations, bring the number up to seventy. This is far above the average of the last several years, which is only slightly over sixty for the Fall term.

FORGIVE "GOLD COASTER" WHO ELOPED

Baltimore, March 16.—Reginald Winans Hutton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guan M. Hutton, relatives of Ross Winans of the multimillionaire Winans family, and a Harvard junior and Gold Coast resident, and his bride, who was Miss Mabel Catherine Dorethea Finn of Boston, are now at Alexandrofsky, the Hutton estate. The bride is the daughter of T. F. Finn, a Boston contractor.

The couple were met at the Union Station by a member of the Hutton family. Young Hutton left the machine on Hollins street and walked to the house, which is some distance from the entrance. The taxi then turned about and drove around to Baltimore street, where the bride was admitted through a private door to Alexandrofsky.

TRAIN GIRLS FOR ARMY IN ANNE MORGAN'S CLUB

By International News Service.

New York, March 16. — Miss Anne Morgan's Inkowa Club will give girls training in real military practice.

"No girl needs to be taught how to carry a gun," said Miss Grace Parker, secretary of the club. "But she does need to know how to act quickly and efficiently when a great crisis arises.

"Preparedness is a feminine as well as a masculine problem. For girls it means an understanding of the principles underlying military organization. It means a new respect for discipline.

"Every business woman I know sees the need for discipline in the world, but it is a lesson that the majority of women have yet to learn.

"The Inkowa Club will, of course, drill the girls in first aid work. A few fundamental rules of drilling will also be studied, as these will help a girl to work more swiftly and efficiently when occasion demands.

Bull's-eye!

Every now and then—not often—a band plays something that sends funny, creepy little shivers up and down your spine—your blood seems to tingle—and there's a catch in your throat. It's a great sensation when it comes—and you can't fool yourself about it.

A good deal the same sort of feeling came to you as a boy when you read of the wonderful doings of your pet hero of the plains.

Maybe you and your best pal talked it all over (especially the day you had both been in trouble at school) and decided very definitely about going West and "showing 'em". Pistols in those talks of yours were always "guns" and rifles "Winchesters" or "repeaters." Very serious talks they were—very exciting and very excited.

And then, the thing got too big for you, and you fell silent as you and your pal stared with set faces off into the setting sun before parting with a word and a grip of two dirty, straining little fists.

Well—it has all come true.

In "Let Katy Do It" a tiny, tow-headed youngster does all the things you wanted to do.

All by himself he sets off the mines and works the levers of the Winchesters that hold back a Mexican horde while our troopers are tearing over the plains to the rescue.

And you get those same wonderful creeps in the spine that you get from the rattle of drums; unless all the "boy" has died in your heart, which God forbid.

"Katy"—mother of none, foster mother of seven—is one of the girls that is a "brick" to boys always.

Yes—it's a bull's-eye, this picture. Nothing flashy or pretentious in any of it,—all as simple and direct as the title. The runaway horses and wreck at the railway crossing; the mine in Mexico with its battery of repeaters; the Mexican bandits and United States Regulars are all matter-of-fact and real and necessary.

"Let Katy Do It" is a Triangle picture that has been "released" for several weeks. Several hundred thousand people have already seen it and most of them remember it.

We are advertising it now, after you know it, so that you may measure other Triangle productions by what you know of this one.

One reason people like them is that the men producing them—Griffith—Ince—Sennett—are so human,—have so much of the healthy American boy in them that their work is that way, too.

Another reason is the charm of the women who play in Triangle productions—

Here are some of them:

Bessie Barriscale
Dorothy Gish
Mae Marsh
Lillian Gish
Seena Owen
Jane Grey
Enid Markey
Norma Talmadge
Fay Tincher
Mae Busch

Bakers' Bread Excels in Purity

BREAD-MAKING is a science which is brought to perfection by the modern New England bakeries.

It will give you a deep respect for the quality of bakers' bread if you follow the process in any modern bakery.

Make the trip through a bakery if only to note the care given to insure absolute cleanliness and purity.

Start in the store-room, where are great quantities of the best flour on the market. See the flour run through screens to sift out every possible particle of dust. Then watch it go into the great white mixing machines, to be mixed more thoroughly, evenly and cleanly than human hands could possibly do it.

Watch the bread rise in dustless rooms, where the temperature is always kept the same. Follow the kneading and dividing of the dough into loaf sizes, all by marvellous machinery and under cleaner conditions than in the cleanest home kitchen in the world.

Mixing and Kneading Spotless machinery takes the place of human hands in the modern bakery. The mixing and baking is done scientifically in great machines like that shown above.

Watch with interest the actual baking in great ovens and then see the final act in the Process of Purity—the wrapping of each loaf by machinery.

Bread is the best of all foods, more nourishing and economical than even meat, fish, eggs, rice or milk. Bread at its purest and best is the loaf of bakers' bread which you can buy for 5 or 10 cents.

OSBORNE SEEKS TRIAL TO END CHARGES

White Plains, N. Y., March 16.—Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, the charge of perjury against whom was dismissed by Justice Tompkins, demands that he be tried immediately, before the same jury, on the second indictment. This indictment is for mismanagement of Sing Sing, but includes charges of immorality against the warden.

District Attorney Weeks scoffs at the idea that Justice Tompkins' decision means the collapse of the Osborne charges.

"The other indictment certainly will not be dropped," he said. "It will be tried the first week in April. I want to say that I am by no means through with my investigation of Sing Sing."

To which Mr. Osborne rejoined. "So far as I am concerned and to the extent of my power, this fight has only just begun. I have instructed George Gordon Battle, my attorney, to force Mr. Weeks to show cause why the second indictment should not be tried immediately, instead of waiting until the first week in April."

A motion for that purpose will be filed by Attorney Battle. If Mr. Weeks fails to satisfy the judge before whom it is made—it need not be Justice Tompkins—that he cannot go to trial at once the new trial may begin on Monday.

This action Mr. Battle forecasted in the court room immediately after Justice Tompkins brushed away the perjury indictment against Mr. Osborne. Naturally Mr. Battle was gratified at the decision that not only was his client not legally guilty of perjury but not guilty of intent to deceive.

N. Y. CONVICTS ASK STATE PROHIBITION

Albany, March 16.—Petitions said to contain the names of 1,000 inmates of Sing Sing, Auburn and Dannemora State prisons were filed with the legislative committees by an ex-convict who appeared at a hearing in support of the State-wide prohibition bill.

New Books Big Item to Harvard Law Students

It is conservatively estimated that Harvard's law students since 1914 have lost $10,000 because of being forced to purchase new books for their classes. Succeeding professors like to teach from their own works, thus throwing the books used by their predecessors on the market without being salable.

Three new books at least will be adopted in the Harvard Law School next autumn. The new dean, Roscoe Pounds, has practically completed a case book on "Torts," which will displace that of his predecessor, the late Ezra R. Thayer, and also the works of Jeremiah Smith.

Professor Brannan's "Bills and Notes" displaces that of the late Dean Ames. Professor Joseph Warren has compiled "Wills," which replace the late Professor Gray's volume 4 on property.

SCHOOL CHAMPION NOW MAYOR'S CLERK

The former school-boy champion hop, skip and jumper of Boston was today detailed from the Public Works Department to act as clerk in the Mayor's office. His name is Harold Foye. He is twenty years old and son of Municipal Auctioneer Eddie Foye. While in the High School of Commerce he is said to have established the local schoolboy record for the hop, skip and jump.

BOOKER IS HELD ON POSTAL CHARGE

Louis H. Booker of Gregg street, Cambridge, a clerk in the Central postoffice, waived examination before United States Commissioner Hayes today and was held in $500 for the Federal Grand Jury, charged with the larceny of $4 from a letter.

REGAN WATERTOWN POSTOFFICE CHIEF

Cornelius J. Regan, a letter carrier since 1897, was today appointed superintendent of the Watertown postoffice in place of Frederic Robbins, resigned. The appointment was made by Postmaster Murray and confirmed at Washington.

CAMBRIDGE MAN HELD IN DEATH OF MOTHER

Richard L. McCormick, thirty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. McCormick of Sixth street, Cambridge, pleaded guilty in the Cambridge District Court today to the murder of his aged mother. He was held without bail until tomorrow.

McCormick, a former inmate of the State Insane Hospital at Westboro, killed his mother, a woman of sixty-nine, while she lay sleeping on a couch in their home yesterday afternoon. He struck her four times on the head with a sledge hammer, and then calmly walked to a station house and gave himself up.

The murder was one of the most revolting ever brought to the attention of the Cambridge police. McCormick's sole explanation of his act was that he was being "hounded" by persons seeking to "put him away for life."

KILLED AS SHE SLEPT.

McCormick was sent to Westboro last Fall because of his mental condition. He was released on parole early in November. Since then he has been living at home. Until a few days ago he seemed rational; then came a sudden relapse which worried his parents.

Yesterday afternoon McCormick returned from a walk, to find his mother asleep on a sitting-room couch. Before lying down she had placed McCormick's dinner on the table.

Without waking her up, McCormick ate the meal, and then went down cellar. He presently returned, carrying a sledge hammer. Entering the sitting-room, he crossed to the couch and brought down a blow upon his mother's head.

This blow he followed with three more. Satisfied that his mother was dead he then laid the hammer on a nearby table, drew a shawl over the woman's body and, leaving the house, coolly made his way to Station 3.

ADMITS ACT TO POLICE.

Captain John J. McBride was at the desk as he entered. Halting before the officer he quietly said:

"I have just killed my mother."

Though startled by this frank assertion the captain quickly realized the truth of it as he glimpsed blood on the other's coat. McCormick was thereupon locked up and closely grilled.

Under this grilling he told of the crime which he said he had committed because of the "persecution" to which he was being subjected. The police found a note in his pocket which read:

"I am tired of this mental torture. I know it will kill me in a short time if I go insane. It is best to put her out of her misery." DICK

McCormick is one of four sons. His father is a registrar of voters. The family has lived in Cambridge many years.

GIRLS OF WOBURN OUTRANK THE BOYS

Announcement of the Woburn High School honor list today showed that the senior girls outranked the boys in scholarship to the extent of getting eight out of the ten honor places, including the two first, the valedictory and salutatory. Eleanor Ray will be valedictorian and Alice L. Porter salutatorian at the graduation exercises next June. The class prophet and class historian will be chosen from the following eight: Mary G. Curran, Helen R. Murphy, Frederic A. Gifford, Margaret Wade, Emily A. Bromley, Muriel L. Perkins, Camilla Burdet and George H. Peterson.

LAVELLE DEFENDS ALLEGED FIREBUG

Former Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle made his first appearance in private practice as counsel for Abraham Goldberg of Oak terrace, Roxbury, who was held in $3,000 for the grand jury on a charge of arson. Goldberg was charged with setting fire to the four-story dwelling, No. 153 Northampton street, on the night of March 5. Several persons occupied the two upper floors.

CLANS AT SHUBERT THEATRE TONIGHT

New York, March 16.—Lindley M. Garrison, former Secretary of War, has become a resident of New York, and as soon as admitted to the New York bar will practise law here as a member of the firm of Hornblower, Miller, Potter & Earle, it is announced. Mr. Garrison was formerly a Vice-Chancellor of the State of New Jersey.

ALONZO W. DUNBAR DIES AT HYDE PARK

Alonzo W. Dunbar, former Representative and selectman of Hyde Park, died today at his home on Atherton street, Hyde Park. Mr. Dunbar was injured last May in an accident and he had never fully recovered. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son.

JUDGE BINGHAM IS MORE COMFORTABLE

Encouraging report was given out at the Corey Hill Hospital in Brookline today of the condition of Judge George H. Bingham of the United States Circuit Court, who underwent a surgical operation Tuesday. The bulletin was: "Judge Bingham had a fairly comfortable night and is doing very well."

Astonishing Power of Iron to Give Strength to Broken Down Nervous People

Physician Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate Folk 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, Specialist of this city, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night; others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms or inorganic iron, like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated, and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Riker-Jaynes-Liggett's and all other druggists—Advertisement.

Order Recount in Weymouth Election Snarl

Mrs. Harriet Batchelder and Joseph Kelley, candidates defeated in the Weymouth town election, have asked the town clerk for a recount of the ballots. The request was granted and the recount will take place next Saturday night.

Mrs. Batchelder, who was defeated by eight votes for School Committee by the male candidates, said: "The stupidity which the precinct officers displayed in handling the election booth prompted me in asking for this recount."

Complete silence is still being maintained by the six female voters who voted in the general election as the result of a mistake at the polls in Ward 3, Weymouth, Monday. The town officials are pursuing the watchful waiting policy in the hope that sooner or later one of the women will be prompted to divulge her secret to a confidant. The identity of the six women remains a mystery.

EXPECT BRANDEIS REPORT MARCH 24

WOMAN IN NEED, GAVE ALL FOR CHARITY

After giving her money and the best years of her life to the cause of charity, Mrs. F. B. Records, who as Lydia M. Warner was a famous Boston philanthropist a generation or more ago, is ill and poverty-stricken in a flat on Barrett street, Malden, it became known today.

A short time ago, she went home from the Carney Hospital where she had been treated as a result of a fall she had. Her husband is unable to work because of his age, and the couple have been forced to sell their household furnishing to procure food. They are in dire need, it is stated.

"There have been three or four days when we've had mighty little to eat," Mrs. Records declared. "My only fear is that we will be forced to the almshouse. We must avoid that."

Mrs. Records was born in New York seventy-eight years ago. She came to Boston when she was seventeen and went to the task of relieving the sufferings of the Boston poor, and paid particular attention to the reformation of young girls. The police co-operated with her.

She aided the colored people who came from the South after the war. With newspaper men, she exposed the baby farm system.

A Good Cook Knows Her Fuel

DO you realize that your oil cook-stove acts very differently with different grades of kerosene?

If you want the clearest, hottest flame with complete freedom from smoke and odor, you should be careful about what goes into the reservoir of your oil stove.

All Kerosene is not alike by any means. And the good kind is enough better to be decidedly worth asking for.

Say "Socony" (So-CO-ny) to the grocer's boy when he comes to take your oil can. In that way you can be sure of getting reliable fuel—Socony Kerosene Oil, which is the Standard Oil Company ot New York's best kerosene.

Socony Kerosene is absolutely clean and clear-burning whenever and wherever you buy it. It does not make wick crust—you do not need to clean the burners so often and you get a bigger money's worth of heat.

Look for the Socony sign in the windows of groceries, hardware and general stores everywhere which carry Socony Kerosene Oil. It is the sign of quality and a reliable dealer.

We recommend the following oil burning devices as the best of their kind: New Perfection Oil Cook-stoves and Water Heaters, Perfection Smokeless Oil Heaters, Rayo Lamps and Lanterns.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—Advertisement.

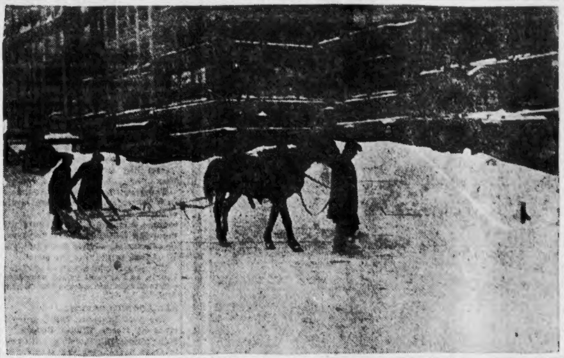
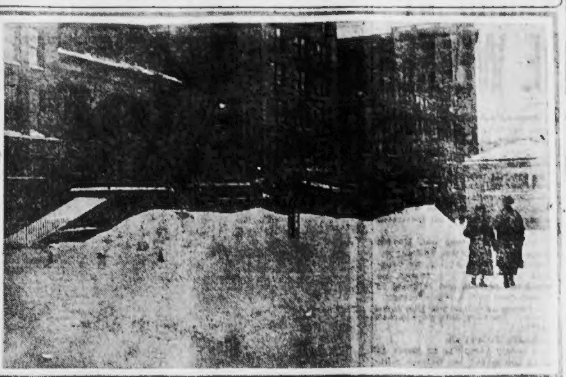
Scenes in Snowbound Boston, Showing Head-High Drifts in Tremont Street



Near southbound subway entrance, showing the head of Winter street and the snow barrier



Tremont street mall, opposite St. Paul's Cathedral, with a rampart of snow on west side of street.

Lawson Cochrane of Providence, owner of the three-masted schooner Lawson, which was wrecked off Bug Light, was brought to this city today with Captain Digon and a crew of three.

The men were taken from the vessel by the coastguard cutter Gresham, and Mr. Cochrane told a thrilling story of their narrow escapes from death while beating about the bay in the blinding blizzard.

The blizzard, which was the worst of the season, with the wind attaining a velocity of seventy-five miles at sea, caused the death of three men, demoralized traffic all over New England, and brought the total amount of snowfall up to 72.1 inches, the greatest since 1903-4.

The Lawson, of Parrsboro, N. S., which it is believed will be a total loss, went aground on the bar stretching between Bug and Boston Lights.

"We were beating about in the bay in a fearful blizzard," said Mr. Cochrane, "with little idea of where we were. Suddenly the Graves light loomed up almost on top of us, with the breakers of Roaring Bull ledge nearly under our bows.

NIGHT OF DANGER.

"Captain Digou ordered the helm put hard down, and we clawed out with hardly an inch to spare. Another minute would have meant death to all because the schooner could not have lived any time at all in the seas that were breaking over the ledge.

"We gradually drew out of the danger one, and having partly gotten our bearings, headed for Boston light. Because of the thick snow we could not keep the light in view, and when we finally saw it the beams were flashing off to one side. Then a heavy sea broached the schooner, and before she could come up she scraped over the bar and settled on the gravel bottom and pounded her bottom out.

"All night long we made signals in an attempt to get help, nearly setting the deck house afire with kerosene, oakum, rosin, turpentine and any other inflammable materials aboard. At daylight, when we were half frozen and almost hopeless, we were sighted. The Gresham, two tugs and the life savers from Stony Beach came to our rescue, and we were brought to Boston."

THREE DEATHS REPORTED.

The men killed were:

DANIEL RYAN, seventy-three, for twenty-five years Boston & Maine crossing tender in Newburyport, was blinded by the snowstorm and stepped out of the way of a snowplow directly in front of an express train in that city.

PETER RAVIO, an ice cutter, was blinded by the storm, fell into the open water, while cutting ice at Spencer and was drowned.

HUGH ARMSTRONG, formerly driver of the Lowell city ambulance, became exhausted in the storm and died at Lowell while on his way home from work.

The Gresham was disabled while attempting to float the Lawson, a hawser catching on the propeller and winding about it. It was some time before the propeller could be freed.

SCHOONER BISBEE ESCAPES.

A three-masted schooner, deeply laden, believed to be the William Bisbee of Rockland, Me., was reported flying distress signals off Orleans, with the New York to Portland steamer North Star standing by.

When within a mile of the beach the schooner managed to claw off, and an attempt was made to work her down the cape to some place where the crew could be taken off.

A large number of persons were forced to sit up all night in a Gloucester waiting room because of the break down of suburban trolley service, and from Quincy, Squantum and other places about Boston came reports of commuters being forced to walk several miles because of the demoralization of traffic.

ALL NEW ENGLAND IN GRIP.

Driven by a northeast gale, which attained the record-breaking velocity of 65 miles an hour at Hull, the snow swept over New England in blinding clouds. Steamers were held in port, trains were delayed and suburban car schedules were entirely upset.

The suburbs felt the brunt of the blizzard. Traffic in some parts was tied up during the day and car schedules upset. Long delays were caused by the high drifts on the tracks of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway, operating cars in Lexington and nearby towns. In places on the Maynard and Hudson line the drifts were several feet high. Cars between Arlington and Lowell were half an hour late.

Steamers as well as sailing vessels and tugs and barges were held in port or driven to shelter by the storm and shipping was practically at a standstill.

The Portland boat did not leave the harbor for its night trip. The Swedish steamship New Sweden, which came into quarantine yesterday morning from Gothenburg, was unable to dock in the gale and anchored off Deer Island Light with double mud-hooks down.

In Boston streets and on city and suburban sidewalks the snow simply made bad conditions a little worse. Tuesday's slush had in the night hardened into ice, the coating of snow made it the more slippery, and for draft horses the day was another of labor and pain.

Snowdrifts four to six feet deep tied up the service between Salem and Danvers, and six cars containing more than 100 passengers, many of them women and children, were stalled until long past midnight at the foot of Gardner's Hill, near the Danvers-Peabody line.

MAROONED ALL NIGHT.

Daylight today found one hundred weary men, women, boys and girls in the waiting room of the central transfer station on Main street in Gloucester, where they had spent a snow-bound night on account of suburban trolley service being crippled.

Stretches of tracks running to Lanesville, Annisquam and Bayside were buried under drifts from eight to ten feet deep. Where the steam road did not serve the persons working in Gloucester and living in the suburbs were unable to get home. Some went to hotels, others to homes of relatives or friends. But a big group was left that sat out or slept out the night on chairs in the transfer station waiting room.

At 7 o'clock the all-night crowd in the waiting room began to thin out as persons departed to work. But at 9 o'clock there were still fifty waiting in the room for some means of transportation home.

HEAVY GALE BLOWING.

The Gloucester service of the Bay State Street Railway Company stopped at 6 o'clock last night, when a lone car arrived from East Gloucester. It was scheduled to continue through Gloucester to Rockport, but it did not complete the trip.

A rotary snowplow of the trolley company burned out three motors and was last reported as stalled at Green's turnout in Riverdale, two miles north of Gloucester.

The trolley line to Essex, seven miles from Gloucester, was closed. One drift having an average depth of eight feet for a stretch of 100 yards was reported from the Essex line.

The Rockport contingent was able to get home last night and back to work in Gloucester today by train.

HOW I CURED MY CATARRH TOLD IN A SIMPLE WAY

Without Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity.

HEALS DAY AND NIGHT

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming or rubbing or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder; no plasters; no keeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all.

Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it over night—and I will gladly tell you how—FREE. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me secretly. My delight in life was dulled and my faculties impaired. I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly yet surely sapping my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say: "Dear Sam Katz: Please tell me how you cured your catarrh and how I can cure mine." That's all you need to say. I will understand, and I will write to you with complete information, FREE, at once. Do not delay. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Don't think of turning this page until you have asked for this wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

SAYS IT BROUGHT HIM GOOD HEALTH

Somerville Engineer Relates How Plant Juice Cured Him of Stomach Trouble.

One-fourth of our city people find life a burden and are devoid of any real happiness, due to stomach, liver and kidney troubles. There are, in fact, but few who are free from these world-wide complaints, chargeable to our modern civilization and the unnatural life the city man or woman is forced to lead. Some seek to get back health by going out and living close to Nature. The others—the great majority—drag themselves along in an existence more or less miserable, imagining themselves afflicted with various ailments.

To these people the new herbal stomach remedy, Plant Juice, is like a ray of hope. It is a modern remedy for modern ills, caused by the rush and hustle of the times. Plant Juice is a vegetable remedy, made from the juices and extracts of medicinal plants brought up to date by modern science, and is the best remedy to be found for all ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood.

Only recently the following signed statement was received from Mr. Edward D. Nute, who resides at No. [illegible] Boston street, Somerville, and is a well-known engineer on the Boston & Maine R. R., having hosts of friends in this city. He stated:

"I have suffered from indigestion and dyspepsia for the past 10 years, but am glad to say that I am a well man today—cured by your medicine, Plant Juice, and I feel that I owe you this public statement for what Plant Juice has done for me. I could not keep any food in my stomach, as it would ferment and cause gas, and I was all bloated and suffered agony after eating. I could not eat a soda cracker without suffering the greatest distress. My liver and kidneys were affected and I had rheumatism in my limbs. I could not sleep at night for the pain I suffered, and became so weak that I had to give up my work. My wife insisted that I try Plant Juice and got me a bottle. Four bottles have entirely cured me and I am a well man—thanks to Plant Juice. I can eat anything I want now and digest it and can say that Plant Juice was a godsend to me. I am glad to recommend it to others."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Co.'s Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation; then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and, furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys, and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement.

U. S. IMPORTERS LOSE BRITISH PERMITS

London, March 16.—Several permits given American importers to ship goods from Germany which were ordered and paid for before March 1, 1915, have been revoked by the British government. One of the most important cancellations is that of an American company which had ordered [illegible] marks' worth of German goods before the British orders-in-council were issued.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Allie Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair.

GERMAN ATTACKS AT VERDUN ARE WEAKER

By International News Service.

London, March 16.—Another lull in the German infantry attacks at Verdun is announced in today's official French communique. It says, however, that the violent bombardment on the right bank of the Meuse has continued. French gunners have shelled numerous supply trains carrying food and ammunition to the German troops in the Woevre region. French artillery activity is also reported in Belgium.

The text of the French communique follows:

"Our patrols have reported that a destructive fire from our artillery directed against the German organizations in the coastal region of Nieuport yesterday evening completely wrecked communicating trenches and killed a number of the enemy.

"In the region to the north of Verdun no infantry action was reported during the night. The bombardment has continued rather feebly on the left bank of the Meuse, but very violently on the right bank in the region of Haudremont and Damloup. Our artillery has violently bombarded the region west of Haudremont, where the enemy was building earthworks.

BOMBARD SUPPLY TRAINS.

"In the Woevre we have bombarded numerous enemy trains.

"East of Apremont forest a surprise attack on a German trench enabled us to inflict some losses on the enemy and to capture some prisoners.

"In the Vosges, south of the Thur, the Germans launched an attack on our positions near Burnhaupt.

"Checked by a curtain of fire, the enemy was unable to reach our trenches."

The German official report reads:

"In Flanders there have been violent artillery actions, particularly upon the coast."

Assaults by the French against the German lines in Champagne broke down, it was announced. The following is the text of the official report:

"West front—In Flanders, especially upon the coast, artillery actions were violent. There was heavy artillery fire at Roye, Ville-aux-Bois and in Champagne.

"South of St. Souplet and west of the Somme-Py-Souain road, in Champagne, the French unsuccessfully attacked our positions. We captured two officers, 150 men and two machine guns.

"On the left bank of the Meuse attempts by the enemy to dislodge us from our positions on Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill) and the woods to the north of the hill were frustrated at the very outset."

"Between the Meuse and Moselle Rivers, the positions are unchanged.

"South of Lower Aspach we penetrated a trench of the enemy, destroyed the position and returned to our own lines with a few prisoners.

"A French aeroplane was shot down at Beine. The occupants were burned to death.

BOMBARD HOSPITAL.

"An enemy aeroplane on March 13 and 15 bombarded the German military hospital at Labry. No damage of military importance was done, but two women and two children were injured."

An official communication made public in Berlin contains a French army order issued by General De Baselaire, commander of the sector on the left bank of the Meuse River, concerning the engagement of March [illegible]. The order, which was found in the wood of the Crows (northwest of Verdun), follows:

"To the commanders of subordinate sectors east and west [illegible]:

"Your forces did not offer the resistance which was to be expected. Until further information I infer that the commander of that section failed in his duty; therefore he will be court-martialed.

"It is necessary to offer resistance to the utmost limits. We must be inspired at this moment only with one resolution—either victoriously to hold up the enemy or to die. Artillery and machine guns will fire on every troop which retreats.

BRITISH ADVANCE ON AFRICAN TOWN

London, March 16.—Fresh progress of the British expeditionary force in the campaign against German East Africa is announced.

General Jan Christian Smuts, in command of the force, reports the occupation of Mushi and that the British are pushing on to occupy Arusha, which is believed to have been evacuated.

'Verdun Battle Turns in Favor of French Arms'

By GENERAL DE LA CROIX,
Former Chief of the French War Council.

Paris, March 16.—The battle of Verdun has turned favorably for our arms. We can confidently await the issue of the gigantic struggle.

The third phase of the battle seems to have begun.

In the first phase we had to give ground, inflicting the maximum losses possible as we retreated, till we came to Douaumont, where we have held on, preventing any further German advance.

The second phase, fought during the first ten days of March, consisted of local attacks on positions on the Paris side of the Meuse. It led to no decisive result and proved ruinous to the Germans.

Up to now the Verdun attack has been sheer brutal hammering without trace of skillful manoeuvering, the logical result of which has been a massacre of Germans.

The only attack that could possibly give the Germans Verdun would be from the Paris side of the Meuse, as anyone can see from a map.

We are going to have further stern actions here, but my opinion is that the Germans cannot succeed.

We have ample means for replying to them and, when their hour strikes, the allies will be able to begin giving freedom to their offensive.

U. S. Surgeons Study Allied Army Methods

London, March 16.—The United States government, it is reliably stated, will shortly send a commission of army surgeons to the western front to inspect the sanitary measures which have kept the French and British armies remarkably free from sickness.

It is proposed to apply to the American army the best features of the allies' methods together with those used during the construction of the Panama Canal.

More Turks Taken.

Petrograd, March 16.—On the Caucasian front, while continuing pursuit of the Turks, the Russians captured twenty-one additional officers and 336 Askaris, as well as two mountain guns.

Hungary Riots Are Caused by Bread Famine

By ANDRE BEAUMONT.

Special to the International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

Milan, March 16. — Reports from Budapest state that distress is becoming painfully evident in many Hungarian towns.

Arad, containing 75,000 inhabitants, was for two days without bread or flour. All bakeries were closed. The Mayor telephoned to Budapest asking for flour and was told that none could be supplied.

It is feared grave riots will follow. Disorders have broken out at Talas on the Rumanian frontier. A mob broke into the warehouses, smashed the shop windows and clamored for bread. Soldiers were called out to restore order.

'CZAR'S ARMY IN TOUCH WITH BRITISH'

Petrograd, March 16.—The Russian troops in Persia are now so far advanced toward the Mesopotamian frontier that they may be said to be in virtual cooperation with the British at Kut-el-Amara, where General Townshend's forces have been cooped up for several months, and the campaign against Bagdad has become twofold, with the likelihood of the Russians being as important a factor in the Mesopotamia operations as their allies.

Before the Russian penetration through the mountain passes of the Kermanshah region it was generally held that the chief aim of the Russian operations on the extreme southern front was effectively and once for all to crush German influence and ambition in Persia, and only the most visionary critics here conceived the possibility of Russia's successfully traversing the Persian mountain provinces and assuming an important role in Mesopotamian affairs.

The latest news, however, of the success of the Russians in working their way through the passes of the formidable range, which acts as a natural boundary between Persia and Turkey, shows that the Russians are in a position to convert their potential threat against Mesopotamia into a positive menace.

The Turkish reinforcements which were sent from Bagdad and Mosul, by way of Suleimanieh and Sehna, to threaten the flank of the Russian forces at Kermanshah and make a further Russian advance dangerous, have been compelled to withdraw on account of British pressure from the south and Russian activity in the north, which some time ago resulted in the capture of Bitlis. The Russians, therefore, are now opposed only by frontal resistance, aginst which they have advanced through all but one of the difficult passes of the mountains separating them from Mesopotamia.

The road from Kermanshah westward, sometimes narrowing to a mere mountain path, winds between the crests of the high ridges of the Persian mountain province of Luristan. Along this the Russians have already proceeded fifty miles in the face of great odds. A short distance along the same road, which, turning southward runs between two mountains tributaries of the Dijala river to the Turkish border, stands between them and the last difficult pass near Hanikin.

GERMAN SUBMARINE IS SUNK BY BRITISH

Mobile, Ala., March 16. — Captain Burgess of the American schooner Gypsum Empress, in today from Shilloth, England, said he witnessed the destruction of a German submarine by British warships off the coast of Scotland, while his vessel was lying at anchor near the mouth of the Clyde.

The submarine was in pursuit of a passenger liner, the name of which Captain Burgess did not learn, and had almost overhauled her when two British destroyers came out from port and, after a battle lasting several minutes, succeeded in destroying the submarine.

'ONLY U. S. CAN END WAR'—MORGENTHAU

New York, March 16.—Henry Morgenthau, United States Ambassador to Turkey, declared in an address at a reception given in his honor by Manhattan borough officials: "America is the only nation powerful enough to rearrange the machinery of civilization which has been entirely upset by the war that is now devastating Europe. Only America can stop this war before it runs its full course."

More Canadians Land.

Ottawa, Ont., March 16.—It is officially announced that the troop ships Missanabie and Scandinavian, which sailed from Canada March 1, have arrived in England. The Missanabie carried 120 officers and 1,632 men; the Scandinavian had on board 82 officers, 1,039 men and 41 nurses.

SUBMARINE ATTACKS FRENCH LINER CARRYING AMERICANS

of England began to pick up "S.O.S." calls from her about 3 o'clock this morning.

Tugs put out from Dover to her assistance. The wireless operator of the steamer reported that she was badly damaged and was sinking fast.

Several hours later a wireless message was received saying that the vessel had sunk, and that "all on board the Tubantia were saved."

The vessel had sailed from Amsterdam yesterday, and Amsterdam later reported by cable that the vessel remained afloat for three hours after receiving her death blow from mine or submarine, so that there was plenty of time to get into the boats.

The catastrophe occurred off Hinder Shoals, and several Dutch vessels put out to the Tubantia's assistance at the first "S. O. S."

ALL ABOARD SAVED.

The first lifeboats heard from arrived at North Hinder lightship at eight o'clock this morning, with twenty-eight passengers and seamen, who said all aboard the Tubantia were safe.

They said there were several vessels standing by when the Tubanda began to sink.

The explosion which sank the Tubantia occurred shortly before 3 o'clock. She was then in waters reported to have been mined recently by German submarines.

A big hole was torn in her, amidsinking being delayed when the water-tight compartments held back the first rush of water.

The first survivors heard from said it was probable the vessel had struck a mine, as it was so dark no submarine could have aimed a torpedo.

These first survivors said there were several Americans aboard, but no official confirmation of this could be secured.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, the agents of the line in Amsterdam said they believed the ship was still afloat; but this was regarded as an attempt to reassure relatives and friends of those aboard, as the wireless had told definitely of her sinking.

The Tubantia carried many bags of mail, and a valuable cargo.

The attack occurred at 9:15 a. m., Captain Dechelles stated. The submarine had not been seen until the torpedo was launched, and had made no effort to stop the vessel.

The wake of the torpedo was seen by officers of the Patria and by passengers on board. Then they discovered the submarine at a considerable distance. Captain Dechelles ordered full speed, and the liner drew away from the submarine without difficulty.

The Patria left Oran, Algeria, on Feb. 18, proceeding to Naples and then to Palermo. It sailed from the latter port on Feb. 29.

U. S. Concerned by Attack on Patria.

By the International News Service.

Washington, March 16.—Administration officials were gravely concerned today over the report of an attack on the big Fabre liner Patria by a submarine off the coast of Tunis. While officials declined to make any statement for publication, it was said that a complete investigation would be made.

The fact that there were twenty American citizens on board the liner added to the seriousness of the situation.

It is expected that the affidavits of the passengers and of Captain Dechelles and his officers will be ordered taken by representatives of the State Department so soon as the complaint of the officials of the line reaches Washington.

The next step will be to try to determine the identity of the submarine which launched the torpedo. This will prove a difficult task, if the early report that the submarine was not clearly seen is confirmed. Germany and Austria, however, will be asked whether they have received reports showing whether one of their craft was concerned.

Officials declared that while the situation on its face was serious, nothing could be done until all of the facts were ascertained. So far no report has been received of the mishap to the Dutch steamer Tubanda, which either hit a mine or was torpedoed. Until the facts in this case are available, Acting Secretary of State Polk said he would not be able to determine whether there was ground for action by this government. Should it be determined that the Tubanda fell victim of a mine that had been planted by a German submarine mine layer, officials say the United States will have ground for sharp and energetic protest, if it develops that there were American citizens on board.

"I give Father John's Medicine to My Children and It Keeps Them Well and Strong."

In a recent message from Cedar Rapids, Ia., Mrs. T. F. Gaines, the mother of three children says: "I am pleased to recommend Father John's Medicine to anybody who wants a medicine to build them up. I give it to my children and it keeps them well and strong." (Signed) Mrs. T. F. Gaines, 921 So. 2nd St., W., Cedar Rapids, Ia.

It is of vital importance to mothers of growing children to know the value of Father John's Medicine as a safe family remedy, because it is pure and wholesome nourishment and is free from morphine, opium, chloroform or any other dangerous drugs. It has had more than 50 years' success in the treatment of colds, throat troubles, stubborn coughs, sore throats and as a tonic and body builder. It is especially valuable in the getting-well stage following any serious illness when strength building food is required. Be sure you get what you ask for.—Advertisement.

SALT RHEUM IN WATER BLISTERS

On Hands. Red and Rough. Would Crack Open and Itch and Burn. Could Not Sleep.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had salt rheum on my hands. It came in little water blisters which began to itch and fester and then I was treated but it did me no good. My hands were red and rough and would crack open and bleed and they would itch and burn so that I irritated them by scratching, causing disfigurement. I could not sleep and I could not do work of any kind.

"At last I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The sample did so much good that I bought one bar of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment, and in a short time I was perfectly healed." (Signed) Miss Lena M. Goodale, 120 Mt. Vernon Ave., Augusta, Me., Sept. 17, 1915.

You will wake up feeling fit and fine. Children need this candy cathartic, too.—Advertisement.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

The Kaiser, it is said, accepted Admiral Von Tirpitz's resignation with reluctance and is expected to create him a Count in recognition of his service. It is certain that decorations and probably a pension will be conferred upon the retiring official.

There are some who believe that the departure of Admiral Von Tirpitz marks a change in the [illegible] of Germany and that the high seas fleet will now come forth to give battle to the British fleet.

The Overseas News Agency, in commenting upon the resignation of Admiral von Tirpitz, says:

"In some quarters the belief [illegible] that the resignation was [illegible] with the Emperor's decision not to extend the submarine warfare beyond the limits announced in the memorandum to neutrals and not to direct it against neutral ships. Von Tirpitz [illegible] At first this [illegible] acclaimed all over Germany as a significant victory for his policy but the elation did not last, and the immediate friction that the Lusitania incident created between Germany and the United States began to make difficulties for the Grand Admiral.

WAR SUMMARY

The Germans have made a beginning at their task of storming Dead Man's Hill, eight miles northwest of Verdun. A comparison of official bulletins from Paris and Berlin indicates that the German attack pushed a wedge into the French defences on the plateau that tops the hill, and that the Germans held on there against vigorous counter attacks, losing only a portion of the captured ground.

Dead Man's Hill's importance is comparable to the importance of the Samogneux ridge, east of the Meuse, in the earlier stages of the fighting. This ridge runs from Samogneux toward Beaumont, due north of Verdun. When the Germans stormed it the French fell back in a single day about three miles to the next line of defences, along the line of Vacherauville-Douaumont.

The hill commands the territory for several miles in all directions and has played an important part in checking the German advance, even on the east side of the Meuse.

If the Germans obtain complete possession of Dead Man's Hill, it is probable that the French will fall back very quickly for a considerable distance, forming their new defence under the guns of Fort de Marre, Fort Bois Bourrus and Fort Choiseul, on a line a little south of Chattancourt and five to six miles from Verdun proper.

The Italians have opened hard fighting along the Isonzo front. Losses on each side appear to have been considerable, but the territorial gains have not been significant.

The Russians report skirmishing along the Poland and Galicia lines, and progress toward Trebizond. In Persia, Petrograd claims Russian troops will soon be in touch with the British before Bagdad.

The British report little action in Flanders. There are no signs of any movement of importance here on either side. In German East Africa the British report considerable successes, while on the Tigris, London says, there was a skirmish that ended favorably for the British, the Turks being driven from an advanced position they had seized

Austria has declared war on Portugal; Germany says there was no German submarine in the waters where the Silius was sunk, and Kitchener, appealing for recruits in the House of Lords, spoke of "the disappointing numbers which have joined for general service," and said, "We shall require a large number of married men within the next few weeks" Herein may be found a suggestion of approaching British activity in France.

Berlin officially announces that Von Tirpitz has resigned "because of illness."

SAYS 'ASQUITH STICKS ONLY TO SALARY'

L[illegible], March 16.—The House of Commons was stirred by a bitter attack on Premier Asquith by Sir Arthur Basil Markham, Liberal member for Nottinghamshire, who said Mr Asquith was a professional politician. He quoted Mr. Asquith's remarks that the Premier would stick at nothing to end the war and added "the only thing he will stick to is his salary."

This brought loud cries of disapproval and demands for the withdrawal of the accusation. The Speak[illegible] disorderly, but the members will form their own judgment of its value."

Walter Hume Long, president of the local government board, declared it was unnecessary to defend Premier Asquith from personal attacks made against him during his absence.

Mr Long touched on the recruiting problem which holds a dominant place in Great Britain at the present moment. He maintained that the government had kept its pledges to the married men in letter a[illegible] He then made the direct state[illegible]

"There are single men in the reserved occupations who should be in the army. There are also a great many single men [illegible] who have not come forward. The government is taking every possible step to find these men and compel them to join the army."

He afterwards dealt with the general policy of the allies, saying:

"The alliance is stronger, more enduring and more [illegible] than it has ever been. The relations between our great allies and ourselves give us the fullest confidence that not only to the end of this bitter struggle shall we stand shoulder to shoulder as one nation, but when it is over and we have won the [illegible] our alliance of friendship and affection will not be ended, but will remain forever as proof that we [illegible] common people and fought as one nation."

ECONOMIC WAR PLANNED BY ALLIES

Rome, March 16.—The conference of the allies in Paris on March 25 will be attended by Baron Sonnino, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Count Cadorna, Chief of Staff. Besides strengthening the co-ordination of the allies in the [illegible] measures of exceptional importance will be decided by the allies.

They are expected to agree not to renew the commercial treaties with Austria and Germany after the war. They will keep their frontiers practically closed for a period long enough to reduce the Teutonic nations to complete submission.

Formally at War.

Vienna, March 16.—Austria has issued a formal declaration that she is at war with Portugal, and the Austrian Minister has left Lisbon.

At Last—
the 'Balanced' Tire

The greatest forward step ever made in pneumatic tires

On January 8th, in the Saturday Evening Post, we announced that at last we had made pneumatic rubber tires more like other dependable articles of merchandise.

Stop and analyze this statement—"more like other dependable articles of merchandise."

Unless backed up by results, it would be almost commercial suicide for a tire manufacturer to make such a statement.

Now we are ready to tell you the reason for this fearless confidence in our tires—the reason for the gigantic sales increases in our tires since September last.

Many months ago we finally worked out and began producing the completely 'balanced' pneumatic tire—the heretofore unattainable goal of every tire manufacturer.

To be 100 per cent. efficient, a tire must be absolutely 'balanced'—that is, the rubber tread and the fabric carcass of the tire must give equal wear.

'Balance' the tire maker's goal

To have perfect 'balance' the rubber tread must have enough resiliency to absorb road shocks that tend to disintegrate the fabric, and still must have the toughness to give long wear.

Too much toughness reduces resiliency; too much resiliency sacrifices toughness.

Problem: find the 'balance.'

Full rubber-tread efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of resiliency and toughness.

Full fabric-carcass efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of fabric layers and rubber—a union that will make tread-separation impossible.

Full, complete tire efficiency demands a 50-50 'balance' of the rubber tread and the fabric carcass—neither may be stronger nor weaker than the other.

This is the goal we have reached

By producing this complete 'balance' between resiliency and toughness in the tread, and between fabric and rubber in the carcass, we have secured 100 per cent. efficiency in United States Individualized Tires, or absolute 'balance' of wearing quality in both rubber tread and fabric carcass.

By September last, these absolutely 'balanced' United States Tires began to be "felt on the market."

Since September, sales have increased steadily month by month up to the recent highest increase of 354 per cent.—this tells the story.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 16.
BOSTON AMERICAN.

We have got along nicely so far. The two hot days, followed by the cool spell, have helped us. It has been a whole lot better than last Spring, and from indications we will have a far better stay here than in previous years.

There is the right spirit in the men. That tells we have a team practically picked and that counts for a whole lot. The new men will be given every chance in the world to show what they have and we will get our machine working before we leave Hot Springs.

The few games that are to be played on the way North will help some also. There may be a game played at Little Rock, but about this nothing definite has been determined.

JESS NOT IMMUNE TO K. O., DECLARES WELSH

By Freddy Welsh,
Lightweight Champion of the World.

I do not agree with some of the experts [illegible] say that Jess Willard is practically [illegible]. But this [illegible] construed to mean that Willard [illegible] a wonderful fighter. What I [illegible] to imply is this—any big [illegible] matter how clever or tall [illegible] can be knocked out, and by a smaller man.

I have seen both Willard and Moran in training and in a fight. I saw Moran beat Coffey twice. He showed me enough to be convinced that a good man of 180 pounds or over can beat Willard.

[illegible] I do not want to go on record at this time as saying that Moran is going to win the fight next week.

Willard [illegible] good condition now. He'll be perfect by the time he enters the ring, and I look for a good battle because I know from personal observations that Moran is a real fighter.

As I said before, when a man weighs 180 pounds or over and is strong and in good condition, the advantage that Willard has over Frank is not so great as to make him a sure thing.

Moran is plenty big enough to reach a vital spot with his punches, and he showed in all his bouts that he carries a real heavyweight's wallop. And when it comes to standing the gaff, I mean stopping the hard punches, you got to hand it to Moran. He is a wonderfully improved fighter since he fought Johnson, and in both his fights with Coffey showed that he can stand punishment.

I think Moran has a great chance to win.

I go back to Willard [illegible] the others who are extolling the champion. He is [illegible] a marvel [illegible] speed for so big a man. I saw him for the first time [illegible] when this part of the country was [illegible] hopes trying to [illegible] Jack Johnson into a match.

My manager, Harry Pollok, and I watched him here, and I picked him as the most likely of the white hopes.

I really called the turn and said that Willard, properly developed, could beat Johnson. So you see I picked a winner more than a year before Willard won the title.

During the practice games here Joe Connolly has been hitting well against the left-handed pitchers. Joe may be in the game this season far more than a great many of the Boston fans imagine. He [illegible] that he [illegible] Ty Cobb or a Tris Speaker in the outfield, but [illegible] he's a lot better than some [illegible] league ball today.

HARVARD TO NAME PILOT

Football Squad Holds Election Tomorrow and Will Pick Successor to Banished Gilman.

HARVARD will choose a new leader tomorrow for its football team next Fall when the men eligible to vote will meet in the Varsity Club and cast their ballots for a successor to J. Atherton Gilman, Jr., who was forced to withdraw from college because of classroom difficulties.

The eligibility of Gilman, and his fellow sufferer, "Billy" Boles, the star halfback, to vote for the former's successor has been put up to the Harvard Athletic Committee and that body is expected to report on the question this afternoon.

Three candidates loom up prominently for the captaincy. "Dick" Harte, who played end on Gilman's wing last Fall, has been frequently mentioned for the honor, although he has seen but one season of experience and besides stands squarely in line to receive the leadership of the baseball team.

Charley Coolidge, long on football and also brains, being a Phi Beta Kappa man, is another possible winner.

The brunette equinox [illegible] Harry Dadmun, who transferred from Tufts and who will be a senior next college year. Dadmun was one of the best rushline players at Cambridge last Fall.

Official announcement of the coaching plans are not now expected to be made until late this month.

RUSSELL BOWIE TO HELP RUN CONTEST

The Victorias and Arena Hockey Club clash at the Arena Saturday night, playing off their sensational 2-2 tie of last Saturday night. Russell Bowie is coming to Boston with the Victorias and will handle the battle [illegible] with Dr. George W. Fingley. The two fast sevens will line up [illegible] the same [illegible] as a week ago. Manager [illegible] announces that [illegible] collection will be taken up during the evening for the benefit of the Canadians in the trenches.

James Still Plugging
Trying Best to Stick

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

MIAMI, Fla., March 16.—While the weather today is a trifle more comfortable than that of yesterday, it is, nevertheless, considerably warmer than any the Braves have encountered on previous training trips. Consequently, the players are not what one would call over anxious for strenuous work.

Appreciating that too much work under current conditions would be harmful rather than helpful, Manager Stallings isn't pushing the boys too hard. This morning's practice session, like that of yesterday, was tame. This afternoon, however, inasmuch as the boys play the Miami team, some stiff work is on the docket.

Manager J. A. Ebbets told Stallings he would put the strongest possible team in the field and the Braves are looking forward to a stiff practice game. Stallings will, in all probability, work three pitchers and among them may be Rudolph and Nehf. Then again Knetzer and Allen may get into the fray, for both are ready for stiff workouts.

This morning Captain Eddie Fitzpatrick had his Sems down in the corner of the park cramming them with baseball lore. He has already secured a fair insight into the "signs" of the Braves and consequently the subs are ready for any of the varied Stallings plays that may be injected into the game.

BILL JAMES STILL PLUGGING.

"Big Bill" James was one of the first out this morning and his initial effort was to run three times around the park. He started to the bench wringing with sweat, and, after a brief rest, was out in the field chasing fungoes. Though Bill is making every conceivable effort to take off some extra poundage, he doesn't appear to be extra successful. He looks to be just as heavy as when he reported.

Paul Strand is unquestionably trying, but efforts cannot be said to be crowned with success. The tall youngster from the Northwest is throwing free, but lacks control. He worked an inning in yesterday's [illegible]es-Seminole game and was as [illegible] as the proverbial hawk.

The clash went the way of the Regulars. [illegible] Fitzpatrick was the whole show, first with his witticisms, then with his crabbing and umpire baiting, and then with the willow. The former International League star is playing a great game of ball this Spring and unless some of the regulars [illegible] out they may find themselves decorating the bench during a greater portion of the season.

BERNIE LEE IN GAME

[illegible] Egan was out of the game and [illegible] Fitzpatrick played second for a time while Bernie Lee was on third. The former Tufts college star was bothered by an extremely sore arm and eventually went to second, while Fitz played third.

Hits were even, with each side having a four-ply smash to its credit, Fitzpatrick and Blackburn being the big stick wielders. Extra base hits, passes and errors figured largely in the scoring for the winners.

For the Regulars every man, save the pitchers, had at least one hit, while for the Seminoles Collins, Nehf, Strand and Knetzer alone went hitless. George Tyler appeared good during the three innings he worked and is apparently almost ready. Art Nehf continued to look like a million dollars, and as usual Dick Rudolph pitched heady baseball.

Tonight the boys will be the guests of the local K. of C. council at a St. Patrick's banquet. Speeches will be made by some of the party.

HARTE INJURED IN CAGE AT HARVARD

"Dick" Harte, Harvard's star windpad artist, while fielding a grounder in the baseball cage yesterday, was hit in the right eye by the ball, the optic and his nose being mussed up. Harte will probably lose out on a week's work.

WELTERS MEET AT B.M.A.A.

Eddie Murphy and Walter Mohr Box Off Recent Draw Tonight —Donovan on with Doyle.

EDDIE MURPHY, the South Boston fast stepper in the lightweight division, and Walter Mohr, the speedy Brooklyn glovesman, will box off their recent twelve-round dead heat at the B. M. A. A. Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, tonight.

Their last clash was brimful of action, with Murphy off badly, closing stoutly; in fact, he deftly pulled an almost sure defeat out of the fire by his sparkling finish

Incidentally, this will be the fourth meeting betwen Murphy and Mohr, and it's surely time the question of supremacy between them should be settled once for all. Mohr is always in condition, Murphy is bound to be in better trim tonight than he was when he clashed with the Brooklyn boy at the B M A A a few weeks ago

Heretofore the Roxbury club has been operating on Friday nights, but this week it was forced to advance the date of its show a night. Hence its members want to pay heed to the change, otherwise they will miss out on a bout that is bound to be well worth seeing, judged by all the action that always marks the brushes between Murphy and Mohr, and should make their reservations during the day

Johnny Donovan, the rollicking South Boston featherweight, who has won some eight or ten battles in succession since turning professional, goes on with Tommy Doyle of Lowell in the semi-windup number. They recently had a fast set-to at Waltham.

Matchmaker Criss states that the first two preliminary events will be up to the standard. The capable Larry Conley will referee all four bouts

Overton Lands Special, with Caldwell 2d

New York, March 16.—John W. Overton of Yale, the intercollegiate cross-country champion, beat a classy field in the Jasper special, a three-quarter-mile scratch race, the feature of the Manhattan College games, last night

Overton won handily from Dave S. Caldwell, Boston A. A., last year's winner, with Sid Leslie, Long Island A. C., third. The winner was clocked in [illegible] 3-5. Mike Devanney, Millrose A. A., James Powers, Boston A. A., and Homer Baker, unattached, also competed.

William Plant, Long Island A. A., who was allotted eight seconds handicap, was the victor of the one-mile walk, ha[illegible] winning from Elmer Renz, Mohawk A. C., the American champion, by about forty yards

Frank L. Stephenson, Trinity Club, the former national champion, smashed for fate a winner in the seventy-five-yard dash, handicap. He started from scratch and won by three yards

RING REMARKS.

SPORTING EDITOR HICKS of the New York Journal reports that the current official betting price on the Willard-Moran fuss is 10-7

THE fans don't want to forget that the B. M. A. A. puts on Welterweights Eddie Murphy and Walter Mohr tonight. All season the Roxbury club has been doing the honors Friday night, but this week it was forced to take the new date. However, the switch is for one week only, states Promoter Bennett.

TREASURER IVY LEWIS of the Armory A. A. announces that reservations are already pouring in for next Tuesday night's show. On paper it smacks of attracting the banner house of the season

JOE EAGAN, who is being skilfully handled by Eddie Mack, has won his right to have it out with Mike Glover Joe, through behaving all Winter and persevering, finds himself in the same boat as Walter Butler, the Revere Rocket, who fought himself up the ladder by fighting, not talking, nor writing loud foolish screeds

BUTLER had his chance coming; got it against Frankie Mack at the Hip Tuesday night, and went over swinging

EAGAN declares he will duplicate Butler's pert performance and show the "trust" there are other pebbles on the beach Joe has batted at a 1,000 clip all Winter. What's more, he has met some pretty tidy foes, worked regularly and shown constant improvement in his all-round performance

IN Glover, Eagan will meet a champion—unquestionably the best welterweight of them all. George Freeman has his charge training faithfully for next Tuesday night's melee Figuring Mike a positive winner, Freeman intends having the South Boston boy cherry ripe, as nothing would suit both of them better than to have Eagan knocked stiff, if such a thing is possible

JOHN O'ROURKE writes the AMERICAN, challenging the winner of the scrap, on behalf of Tommy Robson What's more, John wants the bout booked on the winner-take-all basis.

"DILLY" NIXON of Cambridge and Johnny Noonan of Dorchester have been matched to go on in the semi-windup at the Hip, next Tuesday night.

JOHNNY HARVEY, the New York lightweight, who gave Charley White, the classy Chicagoan, quite a stiff battle at the Arena last Summer, has started training He injured his right hand in his bout with Leach Cross some six weeks ago, and has been idle ever since

DIARY OF JESS WILLARD HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

New York, Thursday, March 16.

WHEN I opened my eyes yesterday morning, my sixteenth day of work, the outlook was anything but encouraging One glance between the curtains showed that the streets were as slippery as glass. Hail was dropping on the walks and sticking like glue

For a few moments I wavered as to whether I would brave the weather or not. I was beginning to think kindly of the warm room when I shook off the lazy feeling and decided to take the air

Monahan, Hempie and myself wrapped ourselves up in heavy sweaters and coats and defied the elements To tell the truth, the weather conquered us About fifteen minutes in that storm and we gave up

The streets were so slippery that I didn't dare to travel far, or walk fast. One fall might undo all my work, so we toddled back to the hotel Once inside we divested ourselves of the wet, clammy clothes and prepared for the morning exercises

In Trim Now and Must Not Go Stale.

In the morning training I did not proceed too strenuously, for I have to be very careful now not to over exert myself and get stale That would mean the loss of the last fifteen days of persistent labor and I do not intend to let that happen.

Only about thirty minutes was used up in performing my exercises and then I took my usual hot bath, was rubbed and dressed for breakfast We sat down to the table at 9 o'clock, and knowing that I wouldn't be able to get much exercise in the open, I just partook of a slight repast, consisting of hot water, soft boiled eggs and milk

This is a prescription I believe everybody should follow When not going to do any hard work, don't overload the stomach

Another cardinal point about keeping the body in perfect physical condition is that a certain length of time should be set aside every day to do some little exercise. Don't say you can't spare the time. That excuse is ridiculous

Everybody Should Exercise Daily.

Ten minutes daily will do you a world of good and you will enjoy the effects when you pass the middle age mark.

After our morning meal it was a case of tearing through the usual deluge of mail and reading the papers

It pleased me greatly to see that the experts realize that I am in tip top condition, and what delighted more than the reports was the fact that the stories were true

Later, in my room, I donned the gloves and practiced sparring I did all the leading while Monohan blocked. Shortly after 1 o'clock we went to the Pioneer Club

While I went through shadow sparring, pulley and medicine ball exercises, I didn't spend as many minutes on them as I did in the past I intend to devote my time principally to boxing, for that is the real essential from now on I went through seven hard rounds, every second of which was crowded with action.

Champion Tips the Beam at 254 Pounds.

After retiring to the dressing room, and getting a dry rub, bath and massage, I found that I tipped the [illegible] close to 254 pounds, which isn't so bad when you consider that I'm a mighty big fellow

The roll of flesh around my body has entirely disappeared and my waist line is the same as when I fought Jack Johnson in Havana last April

From now on I will ease up considerably on other exercises and spend most of my time boxing The little work I will do will be just enough to keep my muscles supple and in good trim

Helen Helps Carrie to Pick Out a Set of Furniture Under Difficulties.

"I W[illegible]" said Helen, coming to the door of the kitchen where [illegible] yourself and if I am not home in time [illegible] take [illegible] over to dancing school about half past three."

Helen was to meet Carrie and go with a professional shopper to buy a new bedroom suite. Why she had been chosen to accompany Carrie, Helen could not determine. If she had known that Carrie had asked her rather than Louise because she knew that Helen would put up with her disagreeable disposition better, Helen might have been indignant. As [illegible] Carrie. When Fred had asked her to do it as a favor, however, she hadn't the heart to refuse. Good natured Fred was so obviously in need of someone to take pity on him.

Helen had demurred at the idea of a professional shopper also. Why did Carrie need a professional and the aid of her sister-in-law, too? But [illegible] explained [illegible] to help [illegible] taste [illegible] out [illegible].

Helen [illegible] Carrie [illegible] on the edge of [illegible] as the elevator let her off at the furniture department where they had decided to meet. With her was a slim little wo[illegible] brown eyes [illegible] briskness that did [illegible] with the rest of [illegible] Carrie [illegible] Miss King [illegible] Helen smile [illegible].

"[illegible] looking around?" she [illegible] Miss King.

"No [illegible]," responded this little [illegible] in a business-like tone of voice, "but we just came a [illegible] before you did."

HELEN DISAGREES

C[illegible] majestically and the three [illegible] toward the bedroom suites. [illegible] came up and the [illegible] Carrie in the first [illegible] of just what she w[illegible] Miss King [illegible] the stock. She talked furniture with the salesman as though she had [illegible] brought up on catalogues and Helen listened admiringly.

Carrie wanted a thoroughly up-to-date suite with twin beds, and she thought she wanted mahogany. They looked at a very gorgeous suite with wicker inset. The beds were fitted out with beautiful mattresses of a deep orange, and the entire effect was [illegible].

"This is the handsomest suite we have in the store," the salesman said in explanation.

"Yes, but so utterly for show and not for use," said Helen before she thought.

"Oh, not that, Mrs. Curtis," said Miss King.

"What I meant to say was that so handsome a suite is almost too much for people who have not unlimited means."

Carrie, of course, chose to take exception to this remark.

"What is the price of this?" she said haughtily.

"Four hundred and seventy dollars, madam; four pieces."

Carrie looked [illegible] and Helen [illegible].

"That is expensive," Carrie said, with as little surprise as she could manage.

"How about that mahogany suite [illegible]," said Miss King to the salesman. "The one we were talking of before."

[illegible] another from the factory."

"[illegible]" Carrie. "I don't want to wait. If we cannot find what we want here we can go elsewhere, Miss King."

Miss King flushed and then good-humoredly led the way toward another mahogany suite a little further down the aisle.

Helen walked with Carrie, and she said as she saw a suite of white ivory, "You wouldn't want to l[illegible] at white ivory, would you, Carr[illegible]"

"No, I should say not," snorted [illegible] the same manner that Warren had when he wanted to express contempt. "That is the most impractical thing that anyone could possibly suggest. I always said that if it had not been for Louise [illegible] would never have invested his money in anything so foolish."

"I think it is lovely," Helen said enthusiastically. "I know that Louise was advised not to get it [illegible] had a bit of trou[illegible]"

CARRIE DOESN'T LIKE IT

"W[illegible] a few complaints," said [illegible] who had overheard the last remark; "of course it's like everything else of the kind—if care [illegible] will last longer."

"[illegible] suite I meant," said Miss K[illegible] around suddenly. [illegible] had gone on ahead, and the [illegible] who apparently had some [illegible] her judgment courte[illegible] point out the good and bad points of the suite herself.

"This hasn't the wicker," she explained, "but the fact is frequently an advantage. The beds are lower, too, than that set you looked at first, and the entire thing isn't so expensive—three hundred dollars, without the bedding."

Carrie examined the suite minutely, but decided that it would not [illegible] more than [illegible] around, and she almost determined to go home once, but the thought of Warren's readiness to take his sister's part in the quarrel that was sure to follow restrained her.

They looked at every mahogany piece in the store. Miss King interested [illegible] in Circassian walnut for a time, but she could not satisfy her. Something was wrong in every case. Helen had visions of dragging over the stock of other stores in the same unprofitable manner when she was already tired out. And finally, as a desperate method of interference, she suggested lunch, and that they talk it over while they ate.

Carrie would not be convinced, and even after she had expanded a little over her coffee she was determined to try elsewhere. As they were going down in the elevator they were all three silent. Suddenly Carrie piped up and said:

"I think that after all I will look over that last suite, Miss King. Perhaps we may be better satisfied than we were." And then to Helen: "It's not an easy matter to select a large article of this kind." This last was said with so near an attempt at graciousness that Helen was too much surprised to respond at all.

It May Never Return to Europe, Declares Evelyn Scotney, Who Says Ambitious Singers Can Get Best of Training in United States

PHOTOGRAPH BY HORNER, BOSTON.

Latest Picture of Mme. Evelyn Scotney.

"WHEN the war is over one of the losses that Europe isn't thinking about just now will be the army of American girls who spend their money studying opera abroad."

So declares Evelyn Scotney, the coloratura soprano, who is singing in Tremont Temple tonight, and who feels that she is American, since she has married an American, and who knows all about the pitfalls of European study.

"Some of the best singing teachers in Europe have come to America since the war," said Madame Scotney, "and they don't ask the high figures for lessons that they were accustomed to get in the good old days. Then, again, the chief object of going abroad to study was breaking into opera over there. Opera has fallen upon evil days on the continent. In France and Italy very little opera is given. Most of the opera houses are closed. In Germany some of the opera houses in the big [illegible] are open, but the old days of great operatic activity are gone.

"The centre of grand [illegible] has [illegible] to the United States, and it may never return to Europe. [illegible] there [illegible] coming back [illegible] European reputation [illegible] Americans now [illegible] here with the best European [illegible] and begin her operatic career [illegible] one of the many good opera [illegible] which are touring the [illegible]. There is always the goal of the Metropolitan for them to look forward to."

They Had Qualified

An English sergeant was inspecting a body of new recruits for the transport service. "Any of you used to driving motor cars?" he asked. Three or four recruits stepped forward. "Ah!" said the sergeant, "now go and get scrubbing brushes and scrub down that staircase! Now, don't none of you say you come here to drive! You come here to obey orders!"

Keeping Up with Success

Sometimes Prosperity Proves to Be a Dangerous Thing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"HAVE you ever noticed," said my friend Lucy to me, "how many love affairs are spoiled by the very one in the case who feels that fate hasn't been fair to her. I known one young woman who is a very active agent in making her own misery. She was nobody in particular and married right on her own plane of existence, and now her husband has begun to make a little money, and she has rather pretty clothes and a rather nice home. But she fancies that she is cheated of her just deserts, and that she was meant to be the helpmate of a millionaire and to grace the palace in the creations of the most elaborate modistes."

Indeed, I have noticed. Don't all of us know parallel cases? There is the man who marries a modest little women in his own walk of life and who with her to help him forges straight ahead to success.

He is put on the directorate of one or two companies, and one or two big men make a fuss over him. At once he fancies that the only thing which is keeping him back in the world is the fact that he is married to a woman who is a detriment and hindrance to him. And he acts on his ignoble conviction.

PARALLEL CASES

Cases like this could be multiplied with frequency which fairly destroys one's faith in human nature. There is the prominent lawyer who has gone so far as to make his friends realize that they are free to invite him out and ignore his wife; there is the brilliant physician who explains to people that Mrs. T. likes to see him enjoy himself, but that it is really too much of a strain for her to keep up with his friends; there is the brilliant young lecturer whose husband is generally ignored in the flattering invitations to great social functions which come to her.

And the ironical part of it all is that the poor silent partner who sits at home is the one who has in all probability made the material success of that marriage and who has made possible the very upward climb of the selfish individual who, grown drunk with a little learning, fancies him or her self a god tied down to earth by a stupid mortal.

THOSE THAT FAIL

There are dozens of marriages which fail because of a difficulty which falls definitely into this category—the class where a little success is a dangerous thing and where one smile of fortune turns a head completely.

The woman who is misunderstood, the man who doesn't get the proper sympathy in his work—both of them owe the beginnings of their little success to the other partner of the marriage. And both of them have the exaggerated ego which surrounds itself with a halo of I, me, my and mine, and makes clarity of vision beyond "myself" impossible.

Any partnership fails when one of the signers of the bond gets a feeling of being superior to the other and of having arrived at the stage where he can go on better alone. And the ironical part of it all is that when this happens, the "superior" and conceited person who attributes the success of the partnership to himself is generally practically incapable of doing anything more than live on the fat of the land provided by the despised member of the firm.

Take stock of yourself—is your marriage foredoomed to failure because of your conceited acceptance of your partner's success as your own?

She Discourses on Subway Manners

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I [illegible] way last night," said the Manicure Lady.

"You mean IN the Subway," the Head Barber suggested.

"You know well enough what I mean, George," snapped the Manicure Lady. "Goodness knows I must be getting pretty careless with my English with a fam[illegible] like [illegible] up [illegible] a [illegible]

If you was more handsome and could talk more grammatical, it wouldn't be long before you got into good society."

"Not for [illegible]," said the Head Barber. "I don't get invited out, but you won't ever see my picture in the paper in no divorce case. A fellow ain't got no business in high society unless he has a lot of dough, so if anything happens he can hire a good lawyer to defend him."

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.—Advertisement.

Alliterative Activity as an Aid to Agility

THIS is an age of alliteration. Glance at almost any periodical and you will find ample evidence of editorial struggles to furnish alliterative titles for the articles. Even this little effusion has not escaped the craze.

The idea aimed at we presume, is to give a trenchant, salient, and more arresting tone to a title. But the "tongue-twisters," both ancient and modern, have no such excuse. Their whole object seems to be to endeavor to perplex us.

If you want to frighten the wits out of a rival learn this by heart and then exploit it.

"I say, So-and-so, people say you say 'I say' to everything I do say. I say, So-and-so, I [illegible] say' to everything I do [illegible] say. So-and-so, it's no reason why you should say I say 'I say' to everything I do say, So-and-so."

If this is too complicated, perhaps the old favorite anent the duel between Shott and Knott [illegible] prove less difficult.

Here it is:

"Shott shot the first shot, and the shot Shott shot shot not Knott. The [illegible] Knott [illegible] Shott shot again, and once more the shot Shott shot shot not Knott, but the shot Knott shot shot Shott, so Knott won, nothwithstanding."

A musical friend told the writer that one of the first tests of pro[illegible] given in music teaching [illegible]

"She stood at the door of the fish-sauce shop welcoming him in."

This appears absurdly simple on paper, but a repetition aloud will soon dispel that illusion. The great secret of the sentence is to emphasize the last syllable of the word "welcoming." Got it right now?

It is almost impossible to pronounce the sentence which runs: "The sea ceaseth, and it sufficeth us," without stumbling. One man made a wager that no one would repeat this sentence 100 times right off without either asking for a drink or stumbling. He won at the seventy-seventh repetition, when his opponent was almost speechless!

Ours is indeed a curious language. Even a sober man might easily be forgiven if he failed at tasks no more difficult than these:

"He started straight up State street," or "Shave a cedar shingle thin."

Space forbids and more. Enough are given, however, to constitute an amusing and novel item in an evening's enjoyment—especially if a party is on.

None are too quickly mastered. If you doubt this, make an attempt and acknowledge alliteration's aggravating artfulness!

Experience Had Taught

An elderly dame heard her married daughter say: "If my husband doesn't alter his ways he'll find himself in hot water!" "My child," said the old lady, "a man is like an egg. Kept in hot water a little while he may boil soft, but keep him there long enough and he hardens."

Time Will Tell

Mrs. [illegible] can tell what any of the neighbors will do next."

"Well, she loses no time in telling what they did last."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU MUST NOT SEE HIM AGAIN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

While looking for a key the other night a gentleman asked if he could offer his assistance, which I accepted. He asked if he could accompany me, as he was going in the same direction. Upon arriving at my destination he asked if he could see me again. I answered him very indefinitely, as I thought it was improper because I had not been introduced to this gentleman, and that was the first time I saw him. After that I have never seen him. Have I acted wisely?

B. S.

YOU should never have spoken to this man, but should have said, "No, thank you!" very quietly when he offered his assistance. In just this way girls make dangerous acquaintances. What do you know about the man? He may be a gentleman, and on the other hand he may be a scoundrel. You must not see him again unless he comes to you with an introduction and credentials from people you know.

YOU ARE MERCENARY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen years of age and working as a stenographer for the last fifteen months at a salary of $12 per week, and deeply in love with a bachelor of thirty-seven, who is a teacher earning a salary of $[illegible] per month. Many of my friends say that I ought to drop him on account of the difference in our ages, but I think, since we love each other our ages should not interfere. And as he is capable of providing a nice home for me, and separation would mean a heartbreak for each, I do not [illegible] friends' advice.

ANXIOUS.

YOU seem more impressed by your fiance's earning capacity and the comforts marriage with him would bring than anything else. Frankly, I consider you too immature for marriage, and have a little suspicion that what you call love is simply an appreciation of the fact that you can get out of working and be taken care of.

ETIQUETTE OF ENGAGEMENTS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

During a conversation of a few months ago the question arose as to whether it was proper for an engaged couple to go out with different fellows and girls.

In explanation would say that one of the girls in the party is engaged and is to be married in April, but was in the company of a young man other than that to whom she is engaged, and she took the stand, as did two of the other fellows, that it was perfectly proper.

F. B. S.

I AM distinctly not in favor of a situation such as you mention. Why engaged couples need seek social enjoyment outside of each other's society is a rather startling question and leads a step further. How congenial is such a marriage going to be?

Stocks Opened Strong and Held Gains---New York Market Active, with Interest Confined to Specialties---Most of the Trading in War Industrials

BELIEVE STOCK CAMPAIGN IS SPREADING

By BOERSIANER.

Sentiment outside of New York city could not fairly be appraised, as the storm almost isolated Wall Street.

That Tuesday's performance had enthused Gothamites was attested by the large turnover in the two first hours by the higher quotations. But from midday to the close the activity waned.

With the creeping apathy prices were modified, a technical manifestation which has no alternative meaning for experts. It favors the campaign.

Before the session had become relatively languid, and had receded from the high attitude of the morning hours, the salients were four—Reading, Westinghouse, Goodrich and Mexican Petroleum.

Reading at 89⅝ duplicated the highest point it had ever attained—the heights reached in the early nineteen hundreds, when the coalers were the all-in-all of the stock exchanges.

Many chastening things have taken place in the long interval, things legislative and otherwise. But the inherent value of Reading has not been impaired. Quite the contrary, which might be offered as the wholesome explanation of what is doing on the Bourse.

There are minds, subtle, curious, restive, that are not satisfied with the explanation that is in the Reading's assets column. Rockefeller buying, segregation, and so on and so forth, in endless variety, are theories advanced and discussed. It is likely that the Rockefellers are purchasers of the stock through the old and well-known house which has been conspicuous in the transactions for weeks.

* * *

The Rockefellers have much money to invest in a certain line, once convinced that the "line" is propitious. They took on Union Pacific lavishly when it was demonstrated to them by Harriman that the dividends would warrant a generous embarkment. But that they are striving for control of the property—that they wish to wrest control from Morgan & Co., is a journalistic refuge from a common sense point.

ROCK ISLAND FAILS TO PAY INTEREST

By International News Service.

New York, March 16.—The interest of $500,000 due yesterday on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company debenture bonds was not paid. The interest was due January 15, but under the indenture the company had sixty days in which to pay before the interest could be declared in default. That period has now expired.

Debenture bondholders have agreed to wait thirty more days before taking steps to declare the principal of the securities due. This has been done to give the reorganizers a chance to formulate a plan for rehabilitating the property.

The refunding bondholders' committee was said to have decided upon a plan of action with regard to foreclosing on their mortgage, but their plans could not be learned.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong at noon, with prices averaging as high as they had been during the morning. Activity was largely confined to war industrials, oils and zincs. Coppers were quiet as a class, and there was not much trading in railroads, aside from Reading. Canadian Pacific was weak, and the others eased off during the morning. In fact, it was called a specialty market. First-hour transactions totalled about 320,000 shares, and trading was on a large scale in the second, although it slackened as noon approached.

Gains in New York at 12 o'clock included Anaconda ½, Utah Copper ⅝, Tennessee Copper 1, American Can ⅞, American Smelting ¾, U. S. Steel ¾, American Zinc 2⅝, Butte & Superior ⅝, Car and Foundry 1⅛, American Locomotive 1⅜, Baldwin ⅞, Central Leather 1, Colorado Fuel 1, Crucible 4⅞, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Maxwell 3¾, first preferred 1 and second preferred 3, Goodrich 1½, Marine certificates 1½, United Fruit 1¾, Westinghouse ⅜, N. Y. Central ⅛, Northern Pacific ⅛, Reading ¼ and Southern Pacific ⅛.

Among declines were Canadian Pacific 2, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Lehigh Valley ¼ and Union Pacific ¼.

Profit-taking had caused a shrinkage of the gain of a number of these stocks.

Coppers were rather quiet in the Boston market, which also confined itself to a few issues. Gains at high noon included Butte & Superior ¾, American Zinc 2, Calumet & Arizona ¾, Copper Range ⅛, St. Mary 1, U. S. Smelting ⅛ and United Fruit 2¼.

Among declines were Alaska Gold ⅛, Woolen preferred ½ and Osceola 1. New Haven was unchanged.

STRONG AT THE OPENING.

Stocks were strong in New York at the opening. Zincs were up a point or more, United Fruit made a good initial gain and among other issues to start considerably higher were Crucible Steel, New York Air Brake, Westinghouse, Mexican Petroleum and Texas Company. Fractional gains were general. Crucible was especially strong. It began with a gain of 1½ and soon was more than two points above yesterday's close. On opening transactions Westinghouse advanced ¾ to 1⅜. Inspiration sold at its highest record price. Reading was a strong and active rail. Trading was of big volume at the beginning and the professional element was apparently of a bullish mind. More optimism was indicated by the operations of this class than has been observed in months. Buying from the outside was reported and public interest in the market was shown in many ways. More demand for stocks from the West is a factor. There are people who think that with the advent of real Spring weather there will be an unmistakable bull movement. News from Verdun was more to the liking of speculators. The invasion of Mexico by American troops is expected to enlarge demand for many kinds of products.

The early demand for stocks was inspired by more than covering of shorts and the price trend continued upward during the first half hour. There was no reaction during that period. In fact the market grew stronger after an opening where gains ranged from fractions to several points.

ZINCS THE FEATURE HERE.

Zinc stocks were the feature in Boston at the opening, being strong and active. United Fruit was also prominent in both respects. The local list ranged higher. There was breadth to the market and business was of good volume after the start.

Producers say recent copper selling has totalled the largest amount in several weeks, transactions being with domestic consumers. July deliveries brought 27 cents a pound. More European demand is reported. The visible copper supply of England and France decreased 2,123 tons in the first half of this month.

On the London Metal Exchange spot copper and futures advanced 10s. today, with electrolytic unchanged. Spot tin was up 10s., futures were off £1, and Straits 10s. lower. Spot lead was unchanged and futures off 5s. Spot spelter advanced £2 to £92 a ton, futures £5 to £80.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The new construction appropriation of the United States Steel Corporation is between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. Present prosperity is being availed of to provide for future production. This year will be made a record for this corporation in this respect. The most it ever devoted to enlargements was $66,981,000 and it was in 1907.

The New Haven road has ordered fifty locomotives, to cost $2,250,000, from the Westinghouse Electric Company.

The decline in the price of quicksilver from $300 to $225 a flask is due to belief that the British government will remove restrictions on exports from Europe.

In 1915 Calumet & Arizona's dividend disbursements amounted to $2,006,557 and its net earnings to $5,453,881.

Motor Notes.

By J. C. KERRISON.

Messrs. Holmes and Ruggles of the Republic Truck Company have been spending the week in Boston. They are planning an active campaign in the interests of the Republic in this section. Yesterday they closed with John O'Donnell to handle the Republic Truck in the city of Providence.

The B. F. Goodrich Company has finished checking its records of tires of other makes, which were replaced during 1915 by Goodrich Wireless Truck Tires, and announce that there were 14,000 such changes made.

In 1914 there were 10,725, in 1913 6,357, and in 1912 3,591 tires of other makes thus replaced.

"This is interesting information," says an official of the B. F. Goodrich Company, "and shows the growth of popularity of our tires."

Money spent in road improvement of the right kind is making a profit of 125 per cent. a year in Wayne County, Mich. The county spent $2,000,000 on construction and maintenance during the eight years from 1906 to 1914, inclusive, and in this period the assessed valuation of property in the county, outside of the city of Detroit, increased from $62,707,000 to $114,548,120, or 82.6 per cent.

Of this increase thirty-five per cent., or $22,000,000, is credited to road improvement, because the assessed valuation of Detroit increased only 47.7 per cent. The increase in county valuation above the rate of increase in the city was eleven times the cost of road work, or 1,000 per cent. profit in eight years on the total investment in improved roads.

A great many of the motor truck concerns of this country have, since the development of the Mexican situation to its present acute stage, taken deep interest in the Quartermaster's Department at Washington.

Rumors of the possible purchase of a large number of trucks by the government are rife.

CURED HIMSELF OF DRINKING

Los Angeles Man Gives Out a Simple Home Recipe That Banished His Desire for Liquor.

Mr. Carl Smith, living at 615½ S. Grand Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., cured himself of the liquor habit with a sample home recipe. In a recent statement Mr. Smith said: "I took two high priced treatments for the liquor habit, both of which failed. Then I heard of the following simple recipe which I tried. It quickly banished my desire for liquor and greatly benefited my health. To 3 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Take a teaspoonful three times a day. It is perfectly harmless and as it has no taste, color or smell it can be given secretly in coffee, tea, milk or in food. Any druggist can put up this recipe at very little cost, and it is a wonderful remedy."

BATTLE OVER $80,000 WILL OF AGED WOMAN

Dr. Charles B. Sullivan of No. 620 Beacon street was one of the chief witnesses today in the hearing in the contest over the will of Miss Frances Maria Wilson, who was 89 years old when she executed the instrument, which is being heard before Judge Carroll in the Supreme Judicial Court.

In her will Miss Wilson left the greater park of her $80,000 estate to George A. Nelson, 30, who sought to marry the Charlestown woman.

The will is being contested by George W. Wilson, a brother, to whom she left $1,500, Mrs. James Bartlett, a sister, to whom she left $3,000, and several nieces and nephews.

Testifying today Dr. Sullivan declared he examined Miss Wilson on December 9, 1914, giving an opinion that she was not of sound mind at that time. He testified:

"I examined Miss Wilson December 9, 1914, in her Charlestown home. The room in which she was in was in poor condition. There was no carpet on the floor, and a great quantity of ashes was scattered about. There was a piano in the room. Miss Wilson was seated in a chair.

"She said she had never been married, and that she never intended to marry. She made irrelevant replies to questions. In my judgment she was not of sound mind when I saw her."

HOME IN POOR CONDITION.

William C. Rodgers, an attorney, also described the poor condition in which he found the Wilson household. He testified that Miss Wilson smiled and refused to answer when he asked her if she had seen the articles in the newspapers about her intended marriage.

John W. Hatch, one of the witnesses to Miss Wilson's will, testified that the first time he saw the Charlestown woman was when she signed will in his presence. He testified that Miss Wilson made a mark on the paper after it had been read to her and that the witnesses then signed. He declared he went to Miss Wilson's home at Nelson's request, that he had heard of Nelson's proposed marriage, but did not know that the woman whose will he was witnessing was the one whom his friend intended to marry.

Leon Chapman, another witness to the will, testified that he had known Miss Wilson for six months prior to the time he witnessed her will. He said the will was read to Miss Wilson before she signed it. He said he signed at the request of L. Edgar Timson, the third witness to the document. He said Miss Wilson appeared to be of sound mind.

SIGNING OF WILL.

In cross-examination, Chapman testified:

"Nelson lived in the same house with Miss Wilson. Mrs. Engles, a nurse, also lived with Miss Wilson. Nelson spoke to me about the will two days before I singed it.

"When I arrived at Miss Wilson's house, Mr. Hatch was there. He had no business there other than that of witnessing the will as far as I knew. Nelson was at the house when I arrived. I did not see the nurse. Mr. Timson arived later.

"Miss Wilson talked about the weather. I did not tell her why we were at her house. Timson gave her the will. She said she could not write very well, and asked him to sign for her. She then made a mark herself. She had never said anything to me previous to this about making a will."

This Attempt to Establish a Bank for Small Borrowers Is a Splendid Example of Public Spirit

MR. EUGENE V. R. THAYER, president of the Merchants' National Bank, has been devoting himself to a very important public-spirited enterprise. It is the establishment in this community of the so-called "Morris Plan of Industrial Loans and Investments." It is an attempt to give the workingmen of this community the same banking privileges that are enjoyed by the men of larger means.

Like the Credit Union, it is an attempt to save honest people of small means, under temporary embarrassment, both from the loan shark and from charity. Mr. Thayer has worked on this project unremittingly for several weeks, and its inauguration is now assured.

This new institution gets its name from a lawyer in Norfolk, Va., who had observed the great good that accrued to the workingmen in the progressive countries of Europe like Germany and France from affording these working people the same kind of banking facilities for their small loans that were afforded to the big business men for their big loans.

He learned from the study of this question that in Germany more than one thousand five hundred millions of dollars had been loaned to the German working people by banks instituted for the purpose of giving the working people the same facilities that are given to the well-to-do classes. He learned that in Germany money was also loaned to the farmer on the rural credit system to an extent of almost five thousand million dollars.

He learned that in France the Bank of France made small loans amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars. In Paris alone, in one year, out of nine million loans, more than four million five hundred thousand loans were for sums of less than twenty dollars, and nearly three million loans were for less than ten dollars. Even in Italy the poor people are provided with banking institutions which have loaned them more than one hundred and seventy million dollars in small sums in a single year.

In this country the privileged classes have been spending so much time piling up huge private fortunes, and the public-spirited citizens have been obliged to spend so much time fighting against the aggressions and lawlessness of these seekers of special privilege, that we have had little time to attend to the little needs of our wage-earners.

In our boasted self-sufficiency we think we are a progressive people. We are shining by the reflected glory of the past. We know that we started years ahead of the people of Europe in all that free institutions and equal opportunities can give a people, and we blindly think that we have kept that lead.

But now at last we are waking up to the sad and solemn fact that not only have the intelligent countries of Europe overtaken us, but have passed us in the race for better conditions for the average man. In Europe they have taken over their railroads, telegraph and telephone companies and most of the other great public service corporations whose control of our American politics has borne such evil fruit in corrupt legislators, corrupt judges and bad laws.

We have had to borrow our modern laws regulating our voting from Australia and Switzerland. We have had to borrow laws providing for workmen's compensation, old-age pensions and mothers' pensions from Germany, France and England. We have been obliged to borrow the more just features of our taxation system from Great Britain, Germany and France.

Now, Mr. Morris decided that it was high time for us to borrow from Germany and France a banking system which would give the wage-earners, in temporary distress, a chance to borrow just as the business men do under like circumstances. He tried the experiment in Norfolk, Va., on a capital of twenty thousand dollars. It was a wonderful success. It not only gave banking privileges to the wage-earners of Norfolk which they never knew before and saved them from the necessity to resort to money sharks, but it gave them this relief upon a business basis so sound that the bank actually made money.

The success of this little experiment in Norfolk attracted the attention of Mr. W. Wood White, who had been for years fighting the loan sharks in Georgia. Mr. White tried the Morris experiment in Atlanta on a larger scale, with success equal to that of Mr. Morris in Norfolk. The plan has been slowly spreading during the last few years and has everywhere met with unvarying success.

This new institution goes upon the principle that if the same care is employed in lending money to an honest wage-earner the risk is no greater than a loan under similar circumstances to the richest men in America. The efforts of Mr. Thayer and those whom he has associated with him will undoubtedly be crowned with success and will thus help to make life more worth living to many a wage-earner in this community.

A New Swindle---Watch Out for It

THE ingenuity of get-rich-quick people is constantly devising new frauds. One of the latest is that practiced by some fly-by-night concerns who temporarily rent a store, fill it with cheap goods and send out runners to solicit customers by all kinds of fraudulent pretences.

These runners watch those which manifest an interest in the show windows of the legitimate stores as prospective customers, and they urge them to come along, like flies into the spider's web, to their little stores, where they sell them goods which they represent to be of especial value for very much more than their real value.

These irresponsible people ought to be watched by the police and by the District Attorney's office. It is said that these fraudulent games are being practiced by the wholesale, and that hundreds of innocent people are losing money which aggregates a large sum.

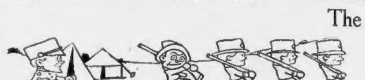
More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Rookie



HE doesn't fit his uniform; he slouches through his drill,
He always spoils a dress parade, because he can't keep still.
He's short on brains an' shy on sense and long on appetite,
The sergeant says there ain't no chance to learn him how to fight.
But when he's down in Mexico, we've got a sort of hunch
That he will sling the lead around with any of the bunch.

HE'LL dodge the bullets for a while, like better men have done,
When he sees bunkies gasp and fall he'll wish he dared to run.
But just the same he'll stay right there and when the fight gets hot
He'll find he doesn't care a rap if he gets hit or not.
He's not a fighting man—not now, but when it comes his turn
To look real trouble in the face, just watch how fast he'll learn.

IT makes no difference what he was before they learned him how
To ride a horse and point a gun—he's one real soldier now.
He may not march or ride like one, them slouchy ways o' his
Will mark him on parade ground for the rookie that he is.
But give him soldier's work to do and put him in the van
And overnight you'll find he is a seasoned fighting man.

Possibly

Of course, all those Plattsburg students will be the first to march to Mexico.

Never Mind the Movies

Too Expensive

At the prevailing rates the death rate from petromortis will be extremely low this season.

The Idler

I WOULD not care two soda straws
Of seven dollars Mex
To be allowed to write the laws
If I could write the checks.
The nation's marvellous supply
Of specie and long green
I would not care to own it I
Could own the gasoline.
I would not have the President's
Assortment of hard jobs.
Could I, by any blandishments,
Get hold of C. M. Schwab's.
But I'm constrained by iron fate
To play the same old game:
And yet it's fun to speculate,
About things, just the same.

In Mexico

It looks as if the rattlesnake crop would suffer from a bad blight this season.

A Word to the Wise

Carranza may send troops over the American border, but he is hereby warned that they had better not be Villistas.

You Can't Keep a Good Man Quiet

Send Teddy as far out to sea as you

But all his opinions come back to us

Preparedness

Mr. Bryan once bought a ranch in Texas, but he was careful to buy one located as far as possible from the Mexican line.

Common Sense Mothers Ella Wheeler Wilcox Shows Best Shield for Girls

Proper Attention to Telephone Calls and Careful Inquiry About Where Daughters Spend Spare Hours Would Prevent Many Tragedies Like Lambert-Orpet Case

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

IN a college town lives a beautiful young girl whose mother is gifted with the unusual asset of common sense. When the telephone rings it is the mother who answers, and when a masculine voice asks for her daughter, the mother inquires who wishes to speak with her daughter. If the name is given and the mother knows the speaker the daughter is allowed to converse over the telephone in the mother's presence.

On, at least, a half dozen occasions, the names have been refused, saying simply, "Oh, just tell your daughter it is a friend wishes to speak with her." "But," said the mother, "unless you are willing to give your name I do not care to have you speak with my daughter."

On these several occasions the name has been refused and the mother very sensibly has hung up the receiver, greatly to the daughter's amusement, be it said.

Remember, this girl is only fifteen, and quite possibly, more than probably, the voices of the speakers belong to boys not many years her senior. Nevertheless, the situation is purely American and indicates on what free-and-easy lines the average girl is educated.

Careful Mother Scoffed at as Crank and Considered Very Strict

This mother has been called a crank, and her rules are considered very strict. She is told that among all the girl's acquaintances no other mother insists upon knowing who is talking to her daughter over the telephone. Then more is the pity.

In two high schools, not many miles removed from the little town wherein this girl resides, tragedies and scandals have occurred which have marred the lives of many young girls. Statistics are in the writer's possession regarding these high schools. Statistics so appalling that they make one wonder there are not more cases like that of Marian Lambert and William Orpet.

If you have daughters or sons attending high school or public school, dear madame, it would be worth your while to pay a little more attention to the telephone calls which your children are giving and receiving out of school hours.

It will be worth your while to know where your children go at the noon hour and the recess hour, and if they do not come home directly from school to know where they have been and who have been their associates.

Of vast importance is it for you to keep in very close sympathy and touch with your young daughters if you live in a college town. The average youth who is sent away to college knows nothing of the sacredness or the dangers which lie in sex attraction.

William Orpet, the youth now awaiting trial for the murder of Marian Lambert, was a freshman sent away to college by his parents without the least instruction on this important subject. It was his pride and boast that he could win the confidence and overcome the prudence of any young girl.

Marian Lambert's mother never asked who was calling her daughter over the telephone. If her daughter had told her it was William Orpet the father or the mother would have felt it necessary to look up the character of William Orpet.

Fact That Youth Attends Well Known College Is Not Character Certificate

The fact that a youth attends some well known college seems to some silly mothers and fathers to be considered a certificate of character. They do not realize how college boys under the influence of drink or in the intoxication of youthful conceit boast of their successes with girls and besmirch their names by frequent utterance in public places.

It is much better for you to be called a crank and to win the reputation of overcaution as a mother than for you to run the risk of ever occupying the position of Mrs. Lambert before the world.

Impress your young daughter, as this sensible mother has done, that it is little short of an insult when any boy or man calls for her over the telephone and refuses to give his name to you. Such experiences cheapen a girl, and she should make it known to all her boy friends that she so understands the situation.

The Aristocracy of the Bath

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART ONE.

A BATH improves everybody. There is no practical possibility of being too clean and certainly no danger in it save the remote one implied in the verdict of the coroner's jury sitting upon the body of a gentleman who had died just after taking his annual bath: "He hadn't orter took off so much of the crust to wunst!"

There is only one aristocracy in this world worth struggling to get into, the aristocracy of the daily bath. When one has once qualified for this he is the equal of any man living, or soon will be. And 90 per cent. of us would gladly qualify if hot water and clean towels were free, as they should be in every community calling itself civilized.

Greece had baths for every citizen; so had Rome, but the Goths broke her aqueducts and the fanatics closed the public baths (being dirty themselves) and Rome fell and the Dark Ages set in. "A thousand years without a bath," as Michelet epitomized them.

A nation's rank in civilization is marked by the number of baths it takes, and we have only just got back to Caesar's level within the last thirty years.

Why is a bath anyway? Partly for cleanliness, partly for coolness and partly—and most importantly—for self-respect.

Cleanness is only relative, of course; we cannot by any possible fury of scrubbing or cleaning, or foaminess of lathering, make the human skin germ-free, surgically clean.

You may scrape, you may lather the skin as you will, but some mild streptococci will hang round it still, in the tubes of the sweat glands and hair glands.

Wherefore some fierce-eyed purists, like Sir Almroth Wright, raised the cry a few years ago: "Why bathe at all? It weakens you and cracks the skin to let in other bugs. Bathe by Nature's method in perspiration only and scrape yourself down with a paddle, like a racehorse, or take a dry rub with sand like an Arab."

But somehow everybody—who has tried it—prefers a real bath in a tub to any kind of scraping or rubbing down. First, because it makes you feel so much better; second, look so much better, and thirdly, smell so much better.

The dry-rubbers and non-tubbers may have a consciousness of inward purity, but they don't look clean, and if they get to windward of you—you know they are there. And the pride of looking clean and smelling clean gives a big boost to a man's self-respect and his minor morals. He's fit for any company then and must "play up."

In-Shoots

A lot of these human persimmons never seem to ripen.

It is asserted that George Washington never told a lie. But George was no historian.

When we flatter ourselves other people are not inclined to listen.

When we look for trouble it generally comes in an unexpected form.
